Yankee Patrol Attacks Poachers in Alaska

AMERICANS KILL 5 JAPS

Revenue Cutter McCulloch Holds Twelve of Mikado's Subjects as Prisoners.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The killing of five Japanese fishermen and the taking of twelve others as prisoners in the Aleutian Islands, Alaska, by Americans, for a raid made by the little brown men on the seal rookeries there, an official report of which was made here to-day, will be carefully investigated by the Government.

The trouble, with its attendant tragedy, took place on Attu Island, the most western of the group. The prisoners were taken by the revenue cutter McCulloch, commanded by Captain J. C. Cantwell.

GOVERNMENT GETS REPORTS.

The report of the affair, which took place on July 17, was made to the Department of Commerce and Labor by Edwin W. Sims, solicitor of the Treasury Department, who is in Alaska to enforce the new law prohibiting all persons not citizens of the United States from fishing in Alaskan waters. The Japanese killed were shot by Americans on Attu Island before the McCulloch arrived.

Lawrence O. Murray, Acting Secretary of Commerce and Labor, promptly turned the cable dispatch over to Robert Bacon, Acting Secretary of State. Mr. Bacon will immediately communicate the information he has received to the Japanese Ambassador, and will express regret that the Japanese poachers were so summarily dealt with by the Americans on Attu Island.

SITUATION IS DELICATE.

There is no reason to expect international complications as a result of the incident, but there is no question that the situation in the Aleutian Islands, especially as it effects the Japanese, is a delicate one and that numerous difficulties are almost certain to be encountered in enforcing the laws protecting American citizens and their rights. . . .

Dispatches from Dutch Harbor say that the raiders were discovered by native lookouts of the North American Commercial Company which leases the seal privileges from the government. Word was telephoned to the nearest patrol station toward which the raiders were heading, and Special Agent Lemboke reached the spot as the Japanese came in shore.

Mr. Lemboke ordered the boat crew to surrender, which they did. Then from the top of a cliff a second schooner was seen close in shore, her deck covered with seals.

State Department Acts on Official Report of Clash Over Seal Fisheries.

When called on to surrender they tried to make off with their booty in small boats. The agent then ordered his native guard to fire. Three of the Japanese fell dead, a fourth was seen to be thrown overboard and a fifth body drifted in later.

HAD KILLED OVER 200 SEALS.

The Japanese had killed more than 200 seals, most of them cows. Those who escaped carried off 120 skins.

The raid is believed to have been a concerted effort by the Japanese, who have been hanging around the island for months and giving the revenue cutter much trouble.

The Tokwa Maru, a schooner, was overhauled by the cutter Perry on July 5 off the new volcanic island which arose near Bogoslof, forty miles from here, last March. She was crowded with Japanese, but no sealskins were found aboard. Suspicions of Captain Dunwoodie of the Perry were aroused, and he proceeded to the Pribyloffs

$10,000 BOND ROBBERY

Mysterious Theft from Office of C. Fay Morse in Minot Building Stirs Police—Stolen Securities Quoted Above Par.

The mysterious theft of $10,000 of Continental Coal & Coke gold 6 per cent. bonds, from the office of C. Fay Morse, in the Minot building on Devonshire street, this city, is being investigated.

The news of the steal leaked out to-day in spite of efforts to keep it secret. The bonds, it is declared, were taken yesterday, and no clue so far as is known has been found that would indicate the identity of the thief.

The face value of the missing bonds is $10,000 and their market value, according to the latest quotation, 107⅝, is $10.760.

The bonds that were taken were certified by the Aetna Trust Company of Washington. Mr. Morse, from whose office they disappeared, is a note broker. His office is on the fifth floor of the building.

According to the information that came to the office of the BOSTON AMERICAN, the bonds were left on the desk of Mr. Morse yesterday while he was temporarily absent. When he returned they were gone.

A search was made about the office for the missing bonds, but no trace of them was found. An investigation of a private nature was then set on foot in quest of a clue to the persons who might have entered the office during the absence of the note broker.

When Mr. Morse was seen to-day by a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN he declined to give any information as to his loss. When asked if he cared to confirm or deny the story of the theft he hesitated and then said:

Morse Declines to Talk.

"I don't care to say anything about the matter at present."

"Were the bonds stolen?" asked the reporter.

"I decline to say," replied Mr. Morse.

"Were such bonds in your possession?"

"I decline to say."

TEXAS TOWN SWEPT AWAY BY TORNADO, SAYS A REPORT

FLOOD ADDS TO HORROR—SCORES OF LIVES LOST, 600 HOMELESS, ENORMOUS DAMAGE.

Special to the Boston American.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 8.—Canyon City, in the Panhandle, is reported to have been destroyed by a tornado last night in which several persons were killed. At Amarillo the family of a farmer named Riggs were killed by lightning.

The severe rains of the last two days, during which twelve inches of rain has fallen, have caused a rise of thirty-one inches in the Colorado and other rivers in South Texas, flooding thousands of acres and causing many deaths. Six hundred are homeless. The property damage will reach more than half a million dollars.

A strip of country thirty miles long and three to six miles wide is covered with water, twenty railroad bridges have been carried away, and it is estimated that 200 miles of railroad track have been washed out.

The Santa Fe has been the worst sufferer.

Thousands of head of livestock have been drowned, fine farms and ranches submerged, while the damage to growing crops is enormous.

The damage along the Texas & Pacific road is repaired and trains are now running on the main line where the washout and fatal wreck occurred yesterday. An unknown man and his team went down with a bridge near Ballinger and was drowned. A tenant farmer, with his family of four, was drowned at the Bismarck farm near San Angelo. The damage along the Concho is measured by the hundreds of thousands.

Some of the greatest losses were suffered at the fine irrigated Concho River farms, which were ruined.

FALL RIVER BOAT HITS SCHOONER IN SOUND

CITY OF TAUNTON COLLIDES WITH 3-MASTER, AND TOWS HER IN.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW LONDON, Ct., Aug. 8.—The Fall River line freighter City of Taunton collided with the three-masted schooner Rebecca Huddle in Long Island Sound early to-day.

The upper headgear of the schooner was cut away.

The steamer towed the schooner to this port, arriving here at daylight. The steamer then proceeded on her way. No loss of life is reported.

RESCUE FOR 5 CHILDREN

Five children, neglected and destitute, according to Agent Mann of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children were sent to the Harrison avenue home by Judge Almy in the Cambridge Court today. They are John, aged thirteen; Nellie, ten; William, eight; Thomas five, and Nora, three, children of David J. Ryan, a shoemaker, living at No. 8½ Clark street. The mother died last December and since then the neighbors say the little ones have been neglected and hungry.

COMMANDER INNIS, ILL, AT MATTAPAN

Commander George Innis, who was taken ill while at Minneapolis arranging for the visit of the Grand Army Club to that city during the national encampment of the G. A. R., is now at the home of his son in Mattapan suffering from nervous prostration. Mr. Innis was to have charge of the trip of the club. G. W. Masters, a well-known railroad man, and Colonel George A. Hosley of Chester, Vt., will assume that duty.

THE WEATHER.

Cloudy, with occasional light rains this afternoon. Warmer to-night. Thursday, partly cloudy to cloudy, probably followed by showers. Light, variable winds, mostly easterly.

High tide—1:43 a. m., 2:10 p. m.

Sun rises, 4:43; sets, 6:56.

Moon rises, 9:27 p. m.

THREE IN PERIL IN AUTO SMASH

William J. Sullivan of Hamilton street, Dorchester, with Mrs. Sullivan and a chauffeur, had a narrow escape from injury to-day when the automobile in which they were riding, just as it turned the corner of Gibson street from Adams, slewed in the mud and struck a telephone pole. One of the rear wheels was torn off and the machine struck the ground heavily. The occupants were thrown violently against the side of the car, but fortunately escaped being thrown out. Mr. Sullivan conducts a tailoring establishment on Washington street.

GARLAND BETTER, BUT NO HOPE SHOWN

HANOVER, Aug. 8.—James A. Garland, the New York and Boston clubman, was reported as being better to-day, his pulse being but 118 and his temperature normal. Owing to the weakened condition of his heart, however, no hope is entertained of his ultimate recovery.

H. FITZGERALD BURIED TO-DAY

Funeral services for Henry Fitzgerald, a brother of the Hon. W. T. A. Fitzgerald, were held to-day at St. James Church, Harrison avenue. Mr. Fitzgerald died Sunday after a short illness following an operation for appendicitis.

At the funeral solemn requiem high mass was celebrated. The Rev. Maurice O'Connor was celebrant, the Rev. John J. Fitzgerald deacon and the Rev. William P. McQuaid sub-deacon. Interment was at Calvary cemetery.

BINDS HIMSELF AND JUMPS INTO LAKE

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Tieing his shoestrings and his suspenders about his legs so that he could not swim, Meyer Rosenbaum, who was spending his vacation at Waukegan, jumped into the lake and was drowned.

CARNEGIE BARS POOR MAN AS HIS NEIGHBOR

Orders Foreclosure Proceedings to Keep Environs of Home Exclusive.

IRON KING LOANED $100,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Another step was taken by Andrew Carnegie yesterday to make the environs of his home at Ninety-first street and Fifth avenue exclusive. By means of a loan on which the interest was in arrears the iron master's agent offered for sale under foreclosure proceedings the property of Daniel Gaffney, a young and comparatively poor contractor, who intended to build in Ninety-first street, opposite the Carnegie residence.

The two lots owned by Mr. Gaffney adjoined the town mansions of William D. Sloan and William A. Burden, Jr., who recently sued Mr. Carnegie because he had sold lots on the other side of them to General Bryce. It is said they also objected to Mr. Gaffney as a neighbor. The contractor bought the property years ago, but only last year mortgaged it to Mr. Carnegie for more than $100,000.

At the end of the first semi-annual interest period Mr. Gaffney defaulted, and foreclosure suit was started. Alfred Katzenstein, of No. 280 Broadway, who was appointed referee, said yesterday that Mr. Carnegie was extremely prompt in initiating the proceeding, and that it was understood that he was inspired by the fear that a stable would be erected on the property.

FIGHTS BOYS WHO WON'T LET HIM DROWN

Desperate Battle in Water Won by Their Clever Work and Agility.

LYNN, Aug. 8.—Fighting for the privilege of dying, Thomas Flynn put up a stiff battle with a number of boys at Sluice Pond last evening, and lost.

Flynn was discouraged, he said, and plunged into the water while the boys were bathing. They at first thought he fell in by accident, but when they went to his assistance he fought them off, exclaiming:

"Let me die."

As he would try to get under the water, a boy would dive under him, and force him to the surface. While he was trying to fight off this boy others would grab him and pulled him nearer shore, until some men arrived and he was handed over to the police on the charge of drunkenness.

HOPES TO HAVE WOMAN MAYOR

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 8.—The third conference of the International League of Women Suffragists is in session here under the chairmanship of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, of New York, president of the league. It opened yesterday and will hold daily sessions until August 11. Twelve countries were represented.

The municipality of Copenhagen gave a reception and Councilor Hage, in welcoming the delegates, said he hoped the next time it convened here the league would be welcomed by women as Mayor and councilors.

LABOR OPPOSED TO LONGWORTH

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 8.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth of the First Ohio District will have the opposition of organized labor in his candidacy for re-election this Fall.

In discussing the probable campaign of the union men against certain members of Congress, Frank Rist, an A. F. of L. officer, declares that Longworth is on the blacklist. He stated that the union leaders would prepare a list of men from both the leading parties who would be acceptable to the unionists.

PLENTY OF ICE HELD IN MAINE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 8.—The predictions of an ice famine received a shock by the statement issued by Colonel George H. Webb of the ice investigation committee of the Board of Trade of this city. The statement follows:

"The result of the investigations recently made into the Maine ice crop by Special Agent Greenlaw shows that the crop remaining there is being held for famine prices. While they are asking high prices for ice now they expect to get at least an average of $4 a ton for all they have left. This would bring it to about $12 a ton delivered here. Maine ice is usually to be purchased for $1 and $1.75 a ton."

BROOKLINE BOYS SAVE TWO LIVES

Leslie G. Rich and Richard O'Neil, two young athletes of the Brookline Swimming Club, while on an outing yesterday at Pine Island Park, Manchester, N. H., rescued from drowning John Wiley and his nephew, Arthur Kennedy. Rich and O'Neil saw from the beach their boat overturn, 200 feet from shore.

TRUST FIGHTS ARBITRATION OF THE PRICE OF CITY LIGHTS

Counsel Burdett Thinks the Mayor Can Be Relied on to Oppose It.

Lights Now Costing $125 Should Not Be Over $75, It Is Declared.

Everett W. Burdett, lawyer for the Electric Light Trust of Boston, declared at City Hall to-day that he did not suppose that Mayor Fitzgerald wanted the price charged the city, which is $125 per light per year, when it is declared it should not be more than $75, arbitrated, or he would have asked to have it done before this.

Labor men had called the attention of the Mayor to the fact that if he does not demand such arbitration before August 20, the city will have to continue paying the present price for two and a half years longer.

Burdett at City Hall.

At the request of the Municipal Lighting Committee, Mr. Burdett called at City Hall yesterday to discuss this matter. Josiah Quincy, James Donovan and Nathan Matthews were also requested to call for the same purpose. No one of the number appeared except Mr. Burdett. There was not a quorum of the committee, and no meeting was held.

Mr. Burdett said that the probable reason that the Mayor does not want arbitration on the price of electric light was because the last arbitration was so recent (it was seven and a half years ago), and it proved so expensive. This is what Mr. Burdett had to say:

"Yes, the contract will continue at its present rate until its expiration in 1909 if the Mayor does not apply for arbitration by that date," said the counsel for the Edison company.

Then Mr. Burdett proceeded to give some reasons why he thought Mayor Fitzgerald did not ask for arbitration.

"I suppose if the Mayor wished to have the contract arbitrated he would have applied before this late day," said he.

Contract "Recently" Arbitrated.

"I suppose the Mayor's reason for not wishing arbitration," he continued, "are that the contract was so recently arbitrated, and that it was done so thoroughly and so justly.

"Another item I suppose the Mayor considers is the expense. When the previous arbitration took place the experts, Nathan Matthews for the city, Herbert A. Wagner of New York for the company and Professor Kennelly of Harvard College as a disinterested third arbitrator, worked on the matter for three months, and it was a very expensive job.

"I believe their work was so satisfactory that there is no desire to have the contract changed before its expiration."

STUDY NUDITY RIGHTLY AND AID MORALITY

—PROF. C. H. SMITH.

Yale Instructor Decries False Modesty Both in Art and Life.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 8.—In a vigorous denunciation of Anthony Comstock's recent raid on art in New York, Charles Henry Smith, professor of American history at Yale, says that the moral reform of the future could come by giving publicity to the very things that Comstock is trying to suppress.

He also held that statues of the human figure should be placed in the public schools and that familiarity with the appearance of the healthy human body should be encouraged instead of forbidden, as is the case.

Fight Evil by Good.

"Official censorship," Professor Smith continued, "is quite apt to change a normal desire for proper information into an unhealthy curiosity and in that and other ways do more harm than good. The most successful way to fight in an evil is to put good in its place. For example, decent entertainments have cleaned up Coney Island. They have succeeded where laws and police and punishment had failed.

"A capital illustration comes to hand in the history of Yale College. Visitors at morning chapel were formerly seated in the rear gallery. When the great body of students stood up at the singing they would turn around and look at the girls in the gallery. This made some disturbance, was embarrassing to the guests, and had to be stopped. How was this done? Simply by changing the location of visitors and putting them downstairs at the front so the students could look at them without making their curiosity obtrusive.

"Familiarity with the appearance of the healthy human body should be encouraged, instead of practically forbidden, as now. No material structure is more worthy of general study and admiration. If well selected pictures and statues of the best human figures could be put in our schoolhouses and children be led by their teachers to look upon and think of them in the right way contaminating influences would have much less chance of doing harm than is now the case.

Suffering Due to Ignorance.

"Competent physicians tell us that there is widespread physical and moral suffering resulting from the present policy of preventing sex knowledge from being acquired in a legitimate and healthful way. To say that people can go to the doctor does not meet the case. They will not go until after the harm has been done.

"The modern way of getting information is from the printed and pictured page. The use of this for the benefit of the general public is now debarred in the very field of all others where correct and timely information, widely diffused, is of transcendent importance.

"How long will a sensible people allow this to continue?"

HEARST WINS MORE REGULARS

CATSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Greene today joined the rapidly growing list of Hearst counties. In a largely attended and enthusiastic Democratic convention at Tannersville, the three delegates to Buffalo were directed unanimously to vote first, last, and all the time for William Randolph Hearst as the candidate for Governor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—William Randolph Hearst was indorsed for governor by the Tallahassee Club, the strongest Tammany Hall organization in the Eleventh (Manhattan) Assembly District, last night.

SMASHING BREEZE FOR THE KING'S CUP RACE

FIFTEEN YACHTS CONTESTING FOR TROPHY OFF BRENTON REEF.

BRENTON REEF, R. I., Aug. 8.—A smashing twenty-knot southeaster blew across the Atlantic this morning, kicking the tops of the curling waves into smothers of spindrift as the fifteen contesting yachts for the King's Cup slipped their mooring buoys in Newport Harbor and bucked a heavy sea on the way to the Brenton Reef lightship. Overhead great black clouds, water-filled, were driven in shore by the easterly blow, and intermittently drenching showers fell. Off shore it was thick and nasty, and the fishermen made heavy weather of it in the boiling sea.

It was just the day for the schooners and J. Rogers Maxwell's schooner Queen was the favorite for the race. The contest was scheduled to start at 10 o'clock, but it was much later before the starting gun was fired.

King Edward's Trophy.

The "King's Cup" was presented to the New York Yacht Club by King Edward of England, who is an ardent yachtsman. The conditions of the contest are governed by the racing rules of the New York Yacht Club. The "Kaiser's Cup" race last year over the Atlantic was the yachting success, and King Edward was quick to learn that his nephew, the German Kaiser, had made a hit.

The race to-day will have none of the hazardous and perilous features of the "Kaiser's Cup" race over the uncertain Atlantic, but there will be keen sailor-craft shown in to-day's contest over the Brenton Reef course, where every point will be fought to the limit. The race with its fifteen starters, will be as much a test of skippers as of boats.

Charley Barr, the skipper of the recent America's Cup defenders, is sailing Cornelius Vanderbilt's seventy footer Rainbow to-day, while Harry Maxwell was at the tiller of the sloop Yankee. The schooner Queen, sailed by J. Rogers Maxwell, was especially built for this race, and her performance to-day was watched with more than usual interest. Sail was made early in the harbor of the contesting yachts, and by 9 o'clock the boats were under way for Brenton Reef vessel, the starting point.

Great Interest in Race.

The interest in the King's Cup race was not confined alone to the yachtsmen with the fleet of the New York Yacht Club. Newport is en fete this week, and hundreds of visitors swarmed to commercial wharf and boarded excursion boats, which followed the racers over the course.

Sir Mortimer Durand, the British Ambassador, saw the race from the deck of the yacht North Star, the guest of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. Sir Mortimer will cable King Edward some nice things about the success of the race after it is over.

Former President Grover Cleveland, who, when he goes yachting always wishes he was fishing, viewed the race with his old friend E. C. Benedict on board the steam yacht Oneida. The quarterdecks of the myriad of steam yachts which poked their noses out of Narragansett Bay to the open sea sparkled with pretty girls.

The rock-bound shore of Newport, too, had a sprinkling of rocking chair enthusiasts, who take their yachting seriously if not realistically.

FIVE JAPS SLAIN IN FIGHT WITH YANKEES

at once, but a dense fog set in and lasted until the Perry returned here on July 16.

DRIVEN OUT BEFORE.

Besides the Tokwa Maru, the schooner Bosso Maru is known to have been in the raid last Autumn. Japanese were found fishing and trading with the natives on the island of Attu, the westernmost in the Aleutian chain, and were routed by the Perry.

The raid is the most serious that has ever occurred in the troubled history of the rookeries. The last attempt to rifle the island was made about ten years ago by a schooner flying the Mexican flag. She was intercepted by a cutter before carrying out her purpose.

The raid was supposed to have been planned by Alec McLean. He was known to be in Victoria, B. C., last Winter, but left there for parts unknown in the early Spring.

Officials and company men on the seal islands are considerably excited, although no further raids are expected, as the patrol of the Behring Sea by the cutters becomes continuous on Aug. 1. Their captains seem disinclined to pursue or capture even schooners known to have taken part in the raid unless found in the three-mile limit or in open violation of the law.

Many prisoners were taken just after the raid, but were allowed to return to their vessels, as the guard was considered insufficient to control so many. The prisoners buried their own dead on the beach. The McCulloch reached the scene of the trouble on July 20 and took charge of twelve prisoners.

The prisoners left on July 25 for Valdez, where the court of the second judicial district, in which the seal islands lie, sits in August. The charge will probably be piracy.

MAYOR TRIES HARD TO SAVE SUPT. ENGLISH

Official Discharged by Hospital Trustees Confers With Fitzgerald.

The first man to see Mayor Fitzgerald to-day upon his arrival at City Hall from Old Orchard was his old Sixth Ward friend James F. English, superintendent of the Long Island Hospital, who has been discharged by the trustees of that institution to take effect August 10.

The Mayor and the man whose job is slipping from under his feet conferred for half an hour. When he emerged from the room Superintendent English declined to discuss the result of the talk.

It is known that the Mayor tried on Saturday to get the trustees to rescind their action and restore English, and it is said that the Mayor put the matter pretty strong, intimating that unless hey did as he desired hey might find themselves with ex's prefixed to their names.

The trustees had a meeting on Monday, but they did not do anything for the superintendent. It was whispered about City Hall to-day that should the Mayor make a fight for English some things might come to light in connection with the pauper institutions that would prove sensational.

ALLEGE CRUELTY; WARRANT FOR JUDGE

BARRE, Vt., Aug. 8.—A warrant is out for the arrest of C. F. Lathrop, assistant judge of Orange County Court and justice of the peace in Williamstown, charging him with cruelty to animals. The complaining witnesses are both neighbors of Judge Lathrop. The charge sets forth in the warrant his cruelty to animals, it being alleged that he shamefully and cruelly beat his horse and that such injuries were done the horse that it is incapacitated for a time.

CENSUS WORK ON DIVORCES TO BEGIN AT ONCE

Agents Start in Big Cities Next Week to Cover 20-Year Period.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Census Bureau has nearly completed arrangements for gathering statistics of divorces. Special agents will be put to work next week in all the large cities of the country. Courts will have adjourned then for the Summer, and it will be possible for the statisticians to get at the divorce dockets without delay.

Chicago, popularly believed to be the greatest divorce mill in the world, will receive thirty special agents; New York will receive twenty; Philadelphia, fifteen; St. Louis, ten; Pittsburg, four agents. South Dakota will be left for the Winter.

The examination is to cover the twenty-year period between 1887 and 1907. The facts to be obtained about each case are:

Date of marriage; date of separation; date of filing petition; who was the libellant; how was notice served, personally or by publication; was it contested; was decree granted; date of decree or judgment; number of years married; cause for which divorced; if not direct, was intemperance an indirect cause; kind of divorce; number of children affected and whether they were all of the union dissolved; was alimony asked; was alimony granted; occupation of both husband and wife and residence of libellee.

FREEPORT, Me., Aug. 8.—About thirty Shilohites, a large number of trunks and enough stores to last a long voyage, were taken on the barkentine Rebecca Crowell, the "Holy Ghosters'" vessel, which left yesterday. No one would tell where they were bound.

THAW DEFENCE TO BE UNIQUE IN HISTORY

Much Speculation Over Nature of Appeal; Mrs. Thaw Sees Husband.

HEAT BADLY AFFECTS HIM

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The new court move on the part of Clifford W. Hartridge, chief counsel for Harry Kendall Thaw, which was scheduled for yesterday, failed to materialize, and it was intimated that the publicity given to the intentions of counsel had necessitated its postponement. The prisoner endured a terrible day of heat in the Tombs.

The last legal move made by Mr. Hartridge was unusual. He secured a temporary writ restraining the District Attorney from taking further evidence against the prisoner, and that writ still holds, as Judge MacLean has not rendered a decision. In view of the fact that Hartridge is not following exactly the usual murder defence lines, there is no little speculation as to the nature of this forthcoming appeal to the courts.

J. J. Caine, a Broadway salesman, whose wife is an old friend of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and who has been wanted by the District-Attorney to tell about an alleged threat that Harry Thaw is said to have made against the life of Stanford White, was located yesterday. He said he knew nothing that would help either side. He said his wife might know something, but she was out of the city.

Mrs. Harry K. Thaw visited her husband at the Tombs yesterday, but the extreme heat kept the prisoner's mother at the Carnegie country place at Roslyn, L. I.

Young Mrs. Thaw was dressed in white and looked more of a girl than a married woman. She carried a big basket of fruit on her arm when she entered the Tombs. On leaving she said that her husband was suffering severely from the heat, but that he was not complaining. The young woman spent some time at the office of Clifford W. Hartridge.

JAIL SAILORS OF THE CZAR AS SUSPECTS

Removed from Training Ship Because of Supposed Disloyal Tendencies.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 8.—A dispatch from Riga to-day says that sixty-six men on board a training ship there have been arrested because of supposed disloyal tendencies.

So far as can be judged by outward appearances quiet has been restored in this city. Most of the striking workmen have returned to work.

An official announcement is made that the government has placed in the hands of the ministry of the interior authority to prepare a bill which shall deal with the entire Jewish question.

The report is renewed to-day that the Czar has made up his mind to confer a regency upon Grand Duke Vladimir and Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch.

If this is true, it means abdication. It is said that this determination was reached after the Czar and Premier had failed to impress upon the reactionary members of the cabinet certain measures of reform which they believed would satisfy the revolutionary party.

WORK RESUMED IN RUSSIAN FACTORIES; STRIKE A FAILURE

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 8.—Work has been resumed at all the mills and factories. The failure of the strike is regarded as open recognition of the powerlessness of the extremists. Order has been restored in the capital.

Well-informed authorities here believe that Admiral Skrydloff, commander-in-chief of the Black Sea fleet, himself organized the theft of certain documents at Sevastopol needed in the trial of mutineers there in order to escape the responsibility of passing sentence of death on the mutineers. By the time a fresh inquiry has been finished the affair will probably have been forgotten and amnesty will have been extended to the rebellious men.

The government has entrusted to the ministry of the interior the preparation of a bill dealing with the Jewish question.

'SHORTWEIGHT' ICEMEN FINED

Three ice men were fined in the Newton Police Court to-day for delivering "short weight" ice. The fines of $10 each were paid by George B. Miller, proprietor of the Crystal Lake Ice Company, by whom the men are employed.

When arraigned to-day the three pleaded not guilty. They were John B. Rodd, William Cameron and Stiles B. Haynes. On the bench with Judge Richardson sat Mayor Warren of Newton, who has taken great interest in the ice cases.

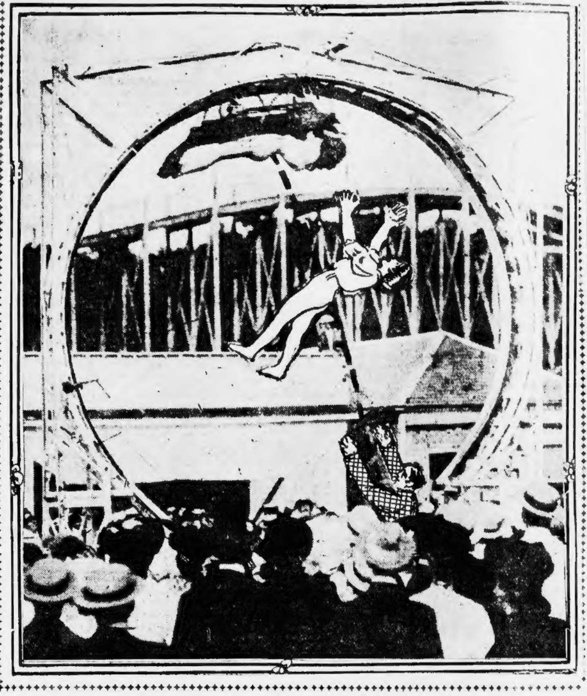
Two other employes of the Crystal Ice Company, James D. Sample and Trueman Carroll, had their cases placed on file, after Judge Kennedy had cautioned them that all ice delivered in Newton must be full weight.

STRIKE MEANS IMMENSE LOSS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Aug. 8.—Unless the strike of the railroad switchmen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which went into effect yesterday, is brought to a speedy ending, the loss to the railroad company will be very heavy, as already there are several hundred cars in the various yards, many of which contain perishable goods.

These cars are accumulating fast, and as the strike of the 250 switchmen badly cripples the freight service, a complete congestion of cars seems to be inevitable. Both night and day forces are out.

WOMAN FALLS FROM CAR CIRCLING "LOOP OF DEATH" AT WONDERLAND



HOW MLLE. LOUBERT FELL FROM CAR IN "DIP OF DEATH,"

Daring Mlle. Loubet in Perilous Accident Witnessed by Many Thousands.

Life Is Saved by Landing in the Arms of Manager Bennett.

Flying around the "Dip of Death" at a speed of over forty miles an hour, with thousand of guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN watching in amazement, at Wonderland Park last night, Mlle. Loubert was thrown from the small car upon which she makes her flight, and while the awe-stricken spectators were held almost breathless and speechless, landed in the arms of Fred A. Bennett, manager of the open air sports.

Never before has this daring rider been apparently so near to death as last night. Not for a moment however did she lose presence of mind, but clutching the iron bar, while the multitude stood aghast, she waited for the inevitable. It came, but not as she expected, for with the sudden halting of the car Mr. Bennett, who was watching her, rushed to her rescue.

From under the iron bar brace, beneath which with vice-like grip she holds her feet, her toes gave way, her body turned in a circle, and in an instant Mr. Bennett had grabbed her. The minute was the decisive one between life and death. If the circus manager had not caught Mlle. Loubet a serious if not fatal accident would have happened. As it was, when dragged from the car, the intrepid little French woman was near to fainting, and three women of the vast audience actually collapsed.

AMERICAN GUESTS AT WONDERLAND

Monday 8,675

Tuesday (estimated) . . 17,000

Dr. Charles A. Oak, Wonderland's physician, was at hand and a hurried call was sent by an over-anxious official for the Wonderland ambulance, but before it came Mlle. Loubet had risen to her feet and in a voice sufficiently audible to be heard by hundreds of the spectators, asked her manager to allow her to attempt her act again.

This both Mr. Bennett and Dr. Oak emphatically refused. She thereupon walked arm in arm with the two gentlemen to the Emergency Hospital, where her injuries were examined and pronounced of no serious consequence.

The crowd of people which visited the big park as guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN was enormous. From the pages of the SUNDAY AMERICAN they had clipped the coupons, one entitling them to admission to the park, and the other to "Bill" Kennedy's big Wild West Show.

Thousands upon thousands poured into the big arena from the moment the gates opened at noon until late at night. There was an unceasing rush. In the afternoon came mothers with children, or with families of four, five and six youngsters, eager to see the wonderful sights.

Fathers Join Families.

In the evening came the papas to join the merry throng, and it was a puzzle at first to the people in the park to see men wandering about, looking at everybody, but anxious to find the ones who had preceded them in the early afternoon.

One of the greatest crowds was at the McDonald restaurant in the park. Every table was filled and as quickly as the waitresses could feed those seated, others piled in.

Over in one of the further corner's of the park the big attraction of the day was on. This was the Wild West Show, and seldom before has such a crowd witnessed the afternoon and the two evening performances. Every seat in the grand stands was packed, and around the big ring in which the cowboys, Indians and cowgirls exhibit, the people were lined ten and fifteen deep. Long before the afternoon performance at the Wild West show had started it became necessary to shut the gates.

When evening came the thousands of people, each one with his or her AMERICAN coupon, were almost unmanageable. In a few minutes after the gates swung open the place was packed, and it was necessary to hold the remainder of the crowd for the 9 o'clock performance.

Truly "American Day."

It was truly a BOSTON AMERICAN day at Wonderland. Late into the night the clerks counted the AMERICAN coupons in an effort to ascertain the exact figure, but it was impossible. Box after box of coupons collected at both entrances to the park and at the gates at the Wild West Show, were carried into the Administration Building.

The cool breeze and fair weather was an incentive to the crowd. It was just the sort of a day they had been looking forward to; one in which every attraction could be enjoyed and still not be annoyed by the excessive heat. Mlle. Loubet in the afternoon went over the "Dip of Death" most beautifully, and the sympathy of the crowd was with her in the evening's accident.

Mlle. Loubet has been giving daily exhibitions of the "Dip of Death" for the past eight months. Several weeks ago she was in an accident in Boyden Heights, R. I., and there is still a scar on her forehead as a result of the fall.

The loop upon which the feat is performed is erected to one side of the ring in the centre of the lagoon. The yielding nature of the bars made it impossible for the car upon which she rides to get the necessary momentum to go around the loop last night. As a result, when starting the ascent, after coming down the steep incline, the car slowed and as a result the accident occurred.

Thought Something Wrong.

It was apparent to almost everyone witnessing the "Dip of Deatah" as the car shot up the loop that something was wrong. The car did not maintain its usual great velocity, but instead slowed somewhat. In her dressing room, last night Mlle. Loubet said that she knew as she went up the incline that something was wrong, but she did not have the slightest fear.

"I could not have done anything anyway," she said, "so I simply went on, hoping that everything would be all right.

"When the car struck, for the moment I hardly knew what to do. All sorts of things flashed through my mind. Then when my feet came loose, my body went over into the air. I would have been killed but for Mr. Bennett. I hardly knew what was going on until I landed on my feet and saw the crowd. Then I came to my senses immediately."

WOMAN LEADS WILD CHASE ON RAILROAD

Annie Phillips, a servant employed in a Wellesley family, will apear in the Newton District Court this morning to answer a charge of drunkenness. She was caught yesterday after a long chase down the railroad tracks of the New York Central main line in Newton after a man who followed her off the train had shouted that the woman had his money. While waiting for the patrol wagon the woman tried to escape, it is charged. She was finally taken into a store and the patrol wagon took her from the rear door.

CARBONEY CLUB OUTING, AUGUST 19

The members of the committee of the Carboney Outing Club, in charge of the annual "Entire Day's Outing," August 19, at Peddocks Island, for the benefit of the Holy Ghost Hospital for Consumptives, are confident, from reports now being brought in, that the occasion will be financially gratifying. On account of the very worthy nature of this charitable enterprise it is hoped that the outing will be well patronized. It will be held under direction of Mrs. P. O'Riordan.

SUES TO GET HIDDEN WILL OF HER FIANCE

Miss Thayer Declares That She Was Given at Least $30,000 by Rolland.

LAWYER DENIES CHARGE

Miss Mary Millicent Thayer, the woman who accuses Lawyer Stephen R. Jones and Mrs. Florence Kitchen of hiding the will of August Rolland and who is suing each in the sum of $30,000, declares that the dead man and she were sweethearts and that they were to be wedded this Spring, just before he was taken with the sickness which caused his death. She also claims that she saw the will and has Rolland's word that she would get not less than $30,000.

Lawyer Jones denies hiding the will and declares that as far as he knows there is no will in existence. Miss Thayer says that Mr. Jones and Mrs. Kitchen, the daughter of the dead man, took possession of the papers and other effects of the deceased immediately after his death.

When seen at her home on Ashland street, Melrose Highlands, to-day, Miss Thayer told her story. She said:

Was His Constant Companion.

"I had known Mr. Rolland for about fifteen years, having been introduced to him by a member of my family at his request. For the last ten years of his life I was his constant companion and secretary.

"Friendship soon ripened into love between us, and the customary engagement followed. Several times the wedding day was set, but at my solicitation the ceremony was postponed because of Mr. Rolland's ill health.

"In April, 1905, a month before Mr. Rolland died, we had a long talk and he told me that he had made up his mind we would be married in the Fall, and we agreed on September 9 as the wedding day. On that same day Mr. Rolland told me all about the will he had made and said: 'Now, if anything happens to me before we are married, I have amply provided for you, Sis, in my will, and it isn't less than $30,000.'

"Early in May, when Mr. Rolland was taken with his last sickness, when talking with him I noticed that his favorite ring was missing from his hand.

Kissed His Hand.

"I found the ring and tried to put the ring on his finger. He brushed my hand aside and told me to keep the ring. Stooping down, I kissed the hand on which he was in the habit of wearing it and said, 'Master, I will keep it until you are better.'

"Mr. Jones, at the solicitation of Mrs. Kitchen, took a room at the hotel and was given orders not to let me see Mr. Rolland again. This instruction Mr. Jones carried out, and I, not wishing to make a scene, did not press my rights to see my fiance.

"On May 15, feeling as if I must see Mr. Rolland once more, I telephoned the doctor and asked if I could not go to him. The doctor told me that Mr. Rolland could not live through the day, that he was unconscious and would not know me. At 7 o'clock on that night Mr. Rolland died."

DO YOU WANT 2 TRAINED BEARS

UPTON, Aug. 8.—Legally possessed of two trained bears, Samuel P. Hall does not know just what to do with them.

Several months ago a circus stopped in town and failed. The proprietor left a five-legged sheep and the bears in charge of Mr. Hall. As time passed and the bears continued to maintain a healthy appetite Mr. Hall got anxious and applied for legal guidance.

Suit was brought and Abijah Rogers, the owner, settled matters by retaining the sheep and giving Hall the bears.

As they are impracticable for plowing or general farm work, Mr. Hall feels that he got the short end of the deal.

CHICAGO BANK THEFT NEARLY $2,000,000

SAVINGS OF POOR SWEPT AWAY—WARRANTS OUT FOR MISSING PRESIDENT.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 8.—Today's [illegible] into the tangled [illegible] of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, the doors of which were closed on Monday, [illegible] the thefts of President Paul O. Stensland, Cashier Hering, and [illegible] will total nearer two million dollars than one.

The worthless paper of the president alone is estimated at $1,000,000.

Stensland's methods [illegible] drained the [illegible] institution. [illegible] of forged or raised notes he [illegible] to himself, to Hering, to his son Theodore, vice-president of the bank, to clerks and to fictitious persons.

Float Wild Cat Schemes.

Bank Examiner Jones declares that the peculations began five or six years ago; that in 1901 the bank carried [illegible] of fictitious paper on which Stensland had raised money.

Stensland and Hering used the stolen money to float all manner of wild cat financial schemes. They also sank large sums in the stock market and in racetrack betting.

They did [illegible] of misappropriating funds [illegible] on deposit, and robbed the safety deposit boxes of the pitiful little amounts stowed away by wage-earners.

Both men are fugitives and the police believe they are in Canada.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Theodore Stensland, son of the absconding bank president. He is accused of receiving deposits when aware the bank was insolvent.

A warrant for the arrest of President Stensland is out, charging fraud.

All yesterday the vicinity of the bank was thronged by wild-eyed men and women, who at times became very demonstrative. Ruin confronts many of them, ruin as poignant to these toilers as would be the sweeping away of rich men's fortunes.

Call Out Extra Police.

The crowd became especially restless when it became known that the safety deposit boxes had been tampered with. A requisition for more policemen was sent in, and the spirit of rioting was quelled by the show of force.

GIRL STRIKERS BATTLE FOR LIVING WAGES

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—"No wonder so many girls wander from paths in which they should travel, when grasping employers give them only $3 or $4 a week for hard work. No girl can live decently on that and many have to keep their fathers and mothers. Low wages constitute a form of temptation," said Lillian Aaronsohn, strike leader of the girl workers in Gerstein's silk factory in Paterson.

The pathetic demand of the girls that the miserable pittance of $3 a week be increased sufficiently to permit them to lead respectable lives has stirred the community.

Before they struck the girls held several indignation meetings. Miss Aaronsohn was chosen to present the grievances to the employer. She pointed out that the Paterson girls were not getting as much as the girls in Gerstein's New York factory.

"And what did Mr. Gerstein say to that, do you think?" said the indignant little strike leader. "He said: 'Do you think you are in New York? You don't have to dress so nicely in Paterson, and you don't need the luxuries of that city.' That's what he said. And so we struck.

"It's a shame," continued the girl. "The American girls among us don't feel this so much. They live at home, and many do not have to pay board; but we who came from Russia and are trying to save money to bring over our old mothers and fathers need every cent. And we are told that we don't need so much money because we don't require fine clothes."

WIDOW DIES, LEAVES MILLION

WESTERLY, R. I., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Hannah B. W. Browne died to-day, aged eighty years, leaving a fortune consisting largely of real estate in Westerly, estimated at $1,000,000. One daughter, Mrs. R. H. Nevins of Lyme, Ct., survives her.

SUEDFOR $3000, SAYS GIRL DID ALL THE WOOING

MALDEN, Aug. 8.—Lozien O. Ball, ex-postmaster of this city, defendant in a breach of promise suit brought by Miss Lydia F. Miller of Medford, declares that the case is not causing him one iota of trouble, and that the charges are without foundation.

He says he met Miss Miller a few years ago in Medford while he was there on business, and was taken suddenly ill. He was taken to the home of Mrs. Dr. Miller, mother of Miss Lydia. He said that while Dr. Miller treated him the daughter acted in the capacity of nurse, and then he became acquainted with her.

Mr. Ball says that he made a few trips to the Miller home after he had recovered, but merely as a friend of the family and not as a wooer of the daughter. After Miss Miller went west they corresponded. His missives, he says, were brief, while the ones written by Miss Miller were sufficient to fill volumes.

The ex-postmaster declares that after she returned from the west that it was she who did the calling and was in the habit of visiting him nearly every day at his home on Washington street. He says he was finally obliged to tell her that she need not call so often.

"She asked me to marry her more than twenty-five times," said Mr. Ball, "and I always told her that I had no desire to get married after I had one wife for thirty years. She sent five other persons to me to urge me to marry her."

Mr. Ball has engaged Lawyer Charles F. Eddy to look after his interests.

PUSHING CASE AGAINST N. Y. ICE BARONS

Success of Prosecution of Philadelphia Trust Renews Efforts of the Officials.

JEROME IS FORCED TO ACT

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The indictment in Philadelphia of fourteen members of the Ice Exchange of that city for conspiracy to raise the prices and with similar action in other cities has caused extra exertion to be made in this city to get after the barons of the American Ice Company.

Judge Rosalsky has impressed upon the Grand Jury their duty to find indictments against the Ice Trust if they can find any evidence to justify it. He has ordered them to hold two sessions daily, in spite of the heat.

Judge Prods Jerome.

The Judge has even gone so far as to say that District Attorney Jerome, who has been conspicuous for his inactivity in this connection, will be required to assist in the investigations by subpoenaing witnesses, conducting examinations and looking for evidence.

Mr. Jerome regards Judge Rosalsky as a "butt-in" judge. He looks upon this intrepid official as one bent upon making this hot weather especially unpleasant for him.

Judge Rosalsky, however, is not disturbed by what Mr. Jerome may think of him. The city is suffering in this cruel heat wave as it seldom has suffered before. On the East Side babies are dying because their parents cannot afford to buy them ice. The tenement houses are reeking with poisonous, superheated air, and there is no relief for their stricken inhabitants.

Jerome Is Reluctant.

In spite of District Attorney Jerome's reluctance to prosecute the Trust officials, it is understood that documentary proof of criminality has been placed in his hands so that he must submit it to the Grand Jury. This body will require the attendance of not only Wesley M. Oler, president of the American Ice Company and head of the Trust, but will subpoena his fellow officials, small dealers and heads of independent concerns.

If a conspiracy in prices or supply is shown to exist there will be an indictment or indictments. There will be a presentment in any contingency.

RUNAWAY HUB GIRL-ACTRESS TAKES POISON

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Disheartened because she was penniless and unable to return to the home in Boston, from which she had run away to go on the vaudeville stage, Lizzie Rogers, a beautiful Jewess, twenty-one years old, drank benzine in her room at No. 147 East Sixteenth street, early to-day and is dying in Bellevue Hospital.

The girl, according to the story told by companions, is the daughter of a dry goods merchant who lives on the outskirts of Boston. Four years ago she ran away from home to join a vaudeville company. She was on the stage for a time and then, losing her position, came to New York.

Her father searched for her and a year ago found in New York and took her home. Apparently fascinated by Broadway life, however, the girl left her home again four months ago, returning to New York. Recently she has been ill and her means dwindled away. Yesterday she received a letter saying that her mother was ill and that her father had come to New York to search for her.

Then the girl tried to borrow money to get to Boston, but failed. Returning to her room early to-day, she decided to end her life and drank the contents of a bottle of benzine. In agony from the effects of the poison, she ran to the street and fled along Third avenue to Fourteenth street, where she fell to the sidewalk.

Detectives Kuhn and Kennedy saw her fall and hurriedly summoned an ambulance. At the hospital it was said the girl would die.

MILLIONAIRE'S BURIAL SIMPLE

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 8.—A simple prayer service at the house, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Frank L. Goodspeed, pastor of the First Congregational Church, constituted the last rites over the body of Daniel B. Wesson, the millionaire pistol manufacturer, whose body was placed in a ghoul-proof steel vault in the family lot at the Oak Grove Cemetery yesterday.

For an hour before the service, the body lay in state in the Maple street mansion, where it was viewed by the 600 employes of the Smith & Wesson factory and hundreds of citizens.

SEES NEW ERA IN POLITICS

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 8.—Alexander Troup, a veteran in Democrat politics in Connecticut, and one of Mr. Bryan's closest friends, has issued a public statement to the effect that, as he intends to retire from political life, he would not consent to be a candidate for nomination as Congressman-at-large this Fall. The first caucus of the coming campaign, held at Plainfield last night, indorsed Mr. Troup for this nomination.

Mr. Troup, in his statement, assails the party leaders in the State and says that we are in the midst of a political revolution. "The signs of the times," he says, "portray a realignment of political parties, and the issue will be clean cut and defined and made so plain that 'he who runs may read.'"

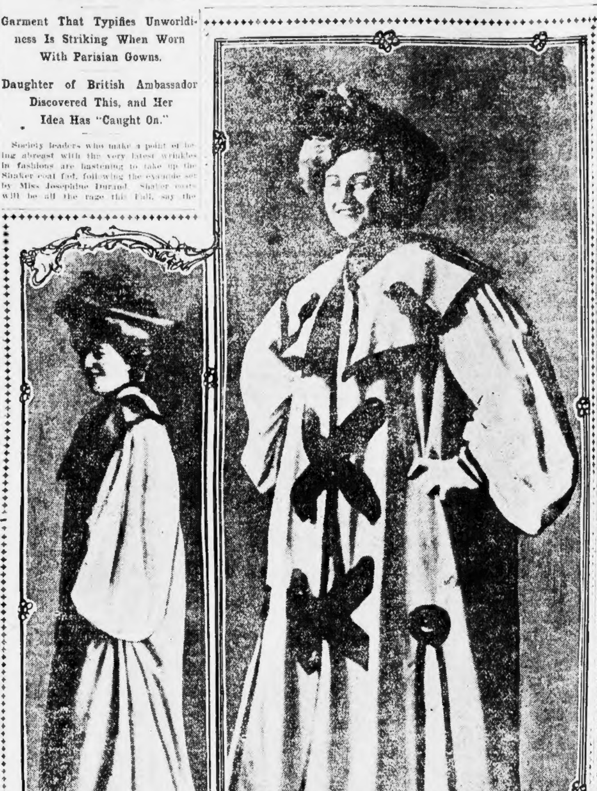
SHAKER COAT, SMART SET'S NEW FAD, STARTLES BY ITS VERY SIMPLICITY

Garment That Typifies Unworldiness Is Striking When Worn With Parisian Gowns.

Daughter of British Ambassador Discovered This, and Her Idea Has "Caught On."

Society leaders who make a point of being abreast with the very latest wrinkles in fashions are hastening to take up the Shaker coat fad, following the example set by Miss Josephine Durand. Shaker coats will be all the rage this Fall, say the modistes.



SHAKER COAT, WHOSE STRIKING SIMPLICITY CAUGHT SOCIETY'S FANCY

Posed for the BOSTON AMERICAN by Miss Goldie H. Stover of "The Man from Now" company.

Miss Durand is the charming daughter of Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador, who is spending the "silly season" at Lenox.

The Shaker colony at Mt. Lebanon is only two miles from Lenox, and the Shaker women wear the famous Shaker coat, whose simple style never changes. Miss Durand is an observing young woman. Hence the Shaker coat fad.

You see, it is one of the recognized canons of fashion that contrast of purpose is just as effective as contrast of color or cut. If a woman can devise some style of wearing a garment that is in direct antithesis to its original plan or purpose, providing there is no extreme incongruity, then she is very likely to achieve a hit and become envied of her sister women.

That's what Miss Durand did. She noticed the plain, gray, severe Shaker coats. She noted how they were meant to typify unworldliness. Says Miss Durand to herself:

"If one should wear the unworldly Shaker coat with a Paris gown and a lingerie hat, wouldn't that be a delightful contrast."

Whereupon she ordered a coat from the Shaker women. But she didn't order it in gray. She chose blue, somewhat to the scandal of the gentle Shaker girls. But she had the plain, simple lines of the coat rigidly followed with the rseult that she obtained a striking blue garment whose gay hue mocked at its plain style of making. With her fashionable gown and hat and her Shaker coat Miss Durand made an instant impression.

The other girls and women in the Lenox set were quick to take up Miss Durand's idea, so that the Shaker seamstresses are rushed with orders for coats of all sorts of colors but of one undeviating style.

The women have to have different colors to suit their various complexions, but the cut is always the same.

BLIGHTED LOVE MAY KILL GIRL

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Among the patients in the Roosevelt Hospital is Miss Julia F. Bergin of No. 408 West Thirty-third street, who was found wandering in a semi-demented condition in the morning.

She is suffering from incipient dementia, nervousness and heat prostration, but back of her strange plight is a sad story.

Miss Bergin was to have been married in St. Michael's Catholic Church last Sunday night to Charles McQuaid, to whom she had been engaged for some time. The banns had been published, and many of her friends were present and were greatly surprised when neither she nor her fiance appeared.

Her father objected to her marrying McQuaid, and she returned the engagement ring on Saturday, saying to her father that he would not be asked to attend her wedding, but that he might soon have to go to her funeral.

TRUSTS CAUSE CUT IN PAY OF SCRUB WOMEN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—A big row has been started in the New York Produce Exchange over the cut made by Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, in the salaries of scrub women, elevator men and porters employed in the building.

Mr. Robinson cut the women's wage of $6 a week to $5.50; elevator men who work twelve hours a day and one night a week are cut from $14 to $12, and porters working twelve to fourteen hours a day at $12 a week are cut to $10.

Mr. Robinson's estimate of the value of labor, however, does not coincide with that of a large number of the 2,500 members of the exchange, who yesterday started an agitation against what they called picayune methods. They drew up a petition to be served on the board of managers of the exchange, requesting that the wages of the humble employes, many of whom are heads of families, be restored.

The action of Mr. Robinson, it appears, is the outcome of a desire upon the part of a minority to reduce the expense of eighty cents a day, which is the approximate amount daily of each member's dues and assessments. This minority is formed of men who through the formation of trusts have been deprived of a large portion of their business.

HEAT BOTHERS BIG CARNIVAL

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—Carnival festivities continued yesterday despite the sweltering heat. In some places it was 91 in the shade. The feature of the day ashore was the parade of school children, but the parents of many feared that the heat would have a serious effect upon their boys and girls and they declined to permit them to march.

On the water the big event was the race of the twelve-oared cutters from the North Atlantic squadron, won by the Illinois crew. Later the sixteen-oared working crews rowed a race in sailing cutters, the Missouri winning. Gambling devices are numerous, but all have agreed to a wide open week and no one is offended.

PUBLIC ICE PLANT DEMAND FOR HOLYOKE

HOLYOKE, Aug. 8.—The Board of Aldermen voted last night to petition the Legislature for permission to establish a municipal ice plant.

The action is an outgrowth of the conduct of the local ice combination which has a twenty-year privilege to harvest ice on the city reservoir, the only available source of an adequate supply of pure ice.

Holyoke is the first New England city officially to agitate a municipal ice plant.

GIRL DYING, DOCTOR HELD

Dr. William H. Bailey of No. 9 Bowdoin street, is under arrest on the charge of performing an illegal operation upon Myrtle Heald, of Riggsville, Me., as a result of which she is dying at the City Hospital. The girl is twenty-six years old and declares that she was attacked by an unknown man who drugged her in a saloon.

3 TIMES BRIDE OF SAME MAN

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 8.—Marrying the same man three times is an experience not accorded to many persons, but May Evelyn Manning has done it. After having twice been married to and twice divorced from John Edward Perkins, they were again married yesterday. They first met while students of the Lowell Textile school.

NEW CRUISER IN COMMISSION.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—The armored cruiser Washington has been put in commission at the League Island navy yard. Captain J. D. Adams, commander of the cruiser brigade, addressed his crew.

LID DOWN IN SARATOGA, BUT OFF IN ALBANY

Gov. Higgins Sends Out Orders, Although There's Carnival of Play at Capital.

GAMBLERS IN QUARREL

SARATOGA, Aug. 8.—Although the "lid" was down tight in Saratoga last night, it was off at Albany. Not a ball was spun, not a card was turned—at Saratoga; "sweat" and "klondike" and even "craps" were concealed under "the lid." The long, green, brilliantly lighted room at Canfield's was as dark as the Styx; "Joe" Ullman's "Bridge Whist Club," where they don't play any bridge whist, was closed as tight as a drum. The Chicago and United States clubs were not holding their usual "at homes." As a matter of fact, not in forty years during a season has the great American spa been as hermetically sealed as far as open gambling is concerned as it was last night.

Procession to Albany.

Pretty nearly all the sports who like to sit up nights went down to Albany, where "the lid" wasn't even tilted, but entirely off. The corridors of the big hotels here swarm with men and women trying to make themselves think it wasn't as hot as it really was, and talking of nothing else but the shutting up of the gambling houses in Saratoga, thirty-five miles from the State Capital, where there is a carnival of gambling the year round within four blocks of where the Governor sits in the Capitol Building.

The order to Sheriff Kavanaugh to put a stop to all gambling save that on the race tracks, where nearly a hundred bookmakers were doing business yesterday without interference of any kind was a surprise. Yesterday morning Sheriff Kavanaugh received a telegram from the Governor advising him that he had received complaints regarding the conditions in Saratoga and peremptorially ordering him to put a stop to them. The sheriff sent word to the gambling-house proprietors that there must be no more gambling. His orders were obeyed.

Gamblers in Quarrel.

The gambling fraternity seem to believe—or at least they say so—that the order to close down is not due to fear of the Governor's wrath, but that the closing of Ullman's place, while Canfield's, the Manhattan and Chicago Clubs were permitted to keep open, so aroused public sentiment that the police were forced to shut up all the places in order to stop the cry of "favoritism."

"This fight is purely one among gamblers," said one of the craft. "Canfield has had things all his own way for so many years, and had the pickings from the rich for so long, that he became jealous of Ullman, who attracted much of his big play from him. Heretofore he has crushed all other opposition, but Ullman, Mackin and Blumenthal have too much money for him to do this without striking back, and the result is everybody has had to put up the shutters. It's a sad condition of affairs for us gents who depend for a living on the amusements of the idle rich."

Ullman, Mackin and Blumenthal, who were arrested Monday night, are still out on bail bonds. Their case will be called Thursday.

JOHN D.'S PIPE ORGAN IS NOISY

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Driven to distraction by the excruciating discords someone has been coaxing from the pipe organ in John D. Rockefeller's Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, some of the rich neighbors who are trying to pass a peaceful Summer in the city have complained.

The church is closed and Mr. Rockefeller away, but the organ is the busiest thing on Murray Hill.

Inquiry at the church brought forth a man with his sleeves rolled up who said the regular organist was out of town. He would not say who was playing when he saw there was a complaint coming.

EARNS $1,000 BY WORK; SUES TO GET BEQUEST

TAUNTON, Aug. 8.—When James H. Gifford of North Attleboro died he left a will which gave his son, Charles H., the sum of $1,000, to be paid to him when he had earned a like sum by his own exertion, but not through speculation. The son now claims the bequest. He has brought suit against the executors, Annie E. Gifford and James W. Gifford, to recover the bequest, which was made July 26, 1899.

DEMOCRATS OF 'RHODY' PLAN LIVELY CAMPAIGN

STATE CONVENTION TO BE HELD OCTOBER 3, AND LEADERS SEE VICTORY.

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 8.—That the greatest enthusiasm prevails in the Democratic party of Rhode Island, and that the party is in better shape this year to elect its candidates than in any previous year, was made manifest at yesterday's meeting of the State Central Committee.

An innovation was made this year in order to allow ample time for an aggressive speaking campaign, as the State convention will be held two weeks earlier than usual. On Sunday last the AMERICAN stated that the Democratic State convention would be held on Wednesday, October 3, and the action of the State Central Committee corroborated that statement by passing a vote to hold the State convention for naming of State ticket and congressional representatives on October 3 at 10 o'clock a. m.

While the State Committee transacted a large amount of business, the principal factor was the adoption of a resolution making the holding of party caucuses throughout the State uniform. Edward M. Sullivan of Cranston moved that the caucuses for the election of delegates to the convention be held not earlier than Monday, September 24, and not later than Friday, September 28.

Favors Uniform System.

In explanation of his motion, Mr. Sullivan stated that it would be a good idea and beneficial to the party at large if the Democratic caucuses throughout the State should be held on a certain date. He added that the various city and town committees might not be in a position to advantageously follow out that idea this year, but the time is not far off, he said, when the Democrats of Rhode Island must follow the plan in vogue with the Democratic parties in other States by reason of adopting a uniform system of holding caucuses. His idea was that this course would prevent the usual delay experienced by the State secretary of the convention in making up the rolls. It would lessen the confusion and make it certain that the delegates named would be properly enrolled.

As regards this motion, an objection was raised by John Baker, of Burrillville, who desired to know what effect the adoption of this resolution would have upon the country districts, as it was generally the custom of the caucuses in country districts to hold their caucuses on a Saturday afternoon, as that was the most favorable time for holding State caucuses.

He was informed by Chairman Fitzsimmons that under the resolution as presented the delegates chosen before the days named in the resolution would not be permitted to sit officially in the convention.

Mr. Sullivan, who presented the resolution, again took the floor and said that the objection raised by Mr. Baker was perfectly logical, and that he would amend his motion so as to substitute September 24 to September 29. Mr. O'Neill, representing Ward 3, Providence, presented an amendment making the date of September 17 to 29. Mr. Palmer of East Providence seconded Mr. O'Neill's motion.

Favored Sullivan Motion.

In explanation of his amendment Mr. O'Neill said that the amended time would give the Democrats of Providence more ample time to make their selection. Peter C. Cannon of the Tenth Ward, Providence, spoke in favor of Mr. Sullivan's motion, and said that it would be to the advantage of the party to hold the caucuses down to a reasonable limit. Colonel Donahue, former chairman of the Democratic City Committee of Providence, was of the opinion that if the caucuses were held within a reasonable period the members of the party would be more anxious to attend better to the caucuses.

The resolution of Mr. Sullivan was also endorsed by Chairman Brindamour of Woonsocket. Chairman Fitzsimmons in addressing the convention on the matter said that it was usual for the country towns to want plenty of latitude with their caucuses, and in view of that fact it would be advisable not to have the resolution go into effect this year, but to have it adopted and put in operation for the caucuses to be held next year.

He gave notice that at the forthcoming State convention he would introduce a resolution directing the State central committee to have it put into operation and procedure that could apply with good effect to the party all over the State.

BEATS NO. 23 AT ROULETTE

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 8.—John A. Drake, the millionaire horseman, had a fight with the fatal No. 23 on the roulette tables in Canfield's last night. When he came into the gambling saloon from dinner he bought a thousand dollars' worth of checks and remarked to the dealer:

"Let's see about this deadly number anyway."

Mr. Drake played 23 for several turns of the wheel and lost $3,000. He played there without success, taking 23 each time, and then, with his remaining checks, walked back to the first table and again placed his checks on 23. It came 23 and Mr. Drake, who had bought $4,000 worth of checks, had $4,400 in front of him.

FINDS CHUM'S BODY AT END OF FISH LINE

WORCESTER, Aug. 8.—Pulling ashore a fish pole that was idly floating on Curtis Pond yesterday, Francis Flynn, aged nine, was horrified to find entangled in the line the dead body of Oscar Wilson, a seven-year-old playmate.

The Wilson boy had gone to the pond to fish some hours previously.

EXAMINE CAT, THAT BIT 2, FOR RABIES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 8.—A microscopical test at the Boston city laboratory failed to determine, except negatively, whether the cat that bit a couple of children had rabies or not.

Health Officer King is having a close watch kept over the children, but as yet no symptoms of hydrophobia have developed.

CHILD'S AWFUL SKIN HUMOR

Screamed with Pain—Suffering Nearly Broke Parent's Heart—Twelve Years of Misery—Doctor Called Case Incurable—Helped from First, and

SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I wish to inform you that your wonderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard down stairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep.

"One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial.

"I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold; and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. (signed) Michael Steinman, 7 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. A single set often cures. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. DEATH PROBE FACES STRIKE-BREAKER TO-DAY

President Mahon Leaves New Bedford, With Hope for Union Men.

BARGES ARE STILL BUSY

Special to the Boston American.

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 8.—An inquest was begun at 11 o'clock to-day before Judge Milliken in the Central District Court on the death of Henry Jolicoeur, the baker, who was killed by a trolley car run by James F. Parker, a professional strike-breaker, on Sunday night, July 29.

Parker was arrested at the time of the accident. He was charged with manslaughter and was held in $2,000 bail, pending the inquest finding. Bail was furnished by President Henry H. Crapo of the Union Street Railway Company, which brought Parker and other strike-breakers here to take the places of the striking motormen and conductors. Parker has been in the city ever since.

Mahon Leaves City.

National President W. D. Mahon of the Car Men's Union left the city to-day. He will go to Boston and thence to his headquarters in Detroit. Before leaving he said:

"My services are not necessary here any longer, and it is impossible for the men and the company to come to an agreement. It is a plain case of fight it out now. I have done all I can for the men as national president and can do no more. The men elected to strike, and they are sticking by their decision well. If they only hang together they will win, or, at least, bring the company to honorable terms. I leave District Organizer D. S. Fitzgerald in charge."

Matthew Hart, James F. Monaghan and P. W. Kelleher, a committee from the Central Labor Union, have conferred with the strikers in regard to providing more regular transportation by barge to take the place of the trolleys. The vote of all the union workers in the city not to patronize the trolleys during the strike is considerable hardship, especially on the women who lives two and three miles from their work.

Barges on Schedule.

The strikers' barges have been giving pretty good service on Purchase street but they have been running independently. The C. L. U. committee reports that the strikers agree to put the barges on a regular secdule.

Twelve strikers went back to their old jobs to-day but the others are more determined than ever. There is bitter feeling against the men who go back.

$112,286,827 IN 1 YEAR FROM CITYOWNERSHIP

The Census Bureau Publishes Figures of 151 Municipalities for 1904.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The census bureau has published an interesting column of statistics regarding the financial condition of the larger cities of the country, together with comparisons as to area and population. The inquiry made in 1904 comprised all municipalities having more than 30,000 population, or 151 in number.

During the fiscal year 1904 the total receipts of the 151 cities were $594,175,998.

The receipts from municipal industries, such as gas and water works and other commercial revenues, amounted to $112,286,827. Of the municipal industries by far the most important are the water works. Their value constitutes 63.8 per cent of the aggregate value of all municipal industries properties.

$8,000,000 in Electric Light.

Of the $8,000,000 invested in electric light works, Chicago reported about one-half. Nearly all of the $31,000,000 invested in gas works was reported by Philadelphia.

It was found that New York had the largest land area, 209,218 acres. New Orleans stood second, with 125,600 acres; Chicago third, with 114,932; Philadelphia fourth, with 81,828, and Duluth fifth, with 40,556. The city having the smallest land area was Hoboken, with 825 acres. It is remarked that there is often great disproportion between the area covered by a city and the number of its inhabitants. Duluth, with 62,000 inhabitants, takes in more territory than St. Louis with its 624,000. Salt Lake City, with a population 6,000 less than Hoboken, included an area thirty-five times as great.

Expenditures Over $500,000,000.

The total corporate expenditures of the 151 cities for the fiscal year 1904 were $554,440,215, of which those of New York constituted $167,060,171, or three-tenths. The report states that although New York has only twice the population of Chicago, its current expenses are nearly four times as great.

The next six largest cities of the country together expend less than New York. Boston appears to be a rival to New York in the generous way in which money is spent by the city fathers. Though about equal in size with Baltimore, the current expenses are nearly three times as great. Washington is another of the larger cities conspicuous for generous expenditure. It spends more than any one of the next eight larger cities of the country and twice that of other cities of about the same population.

The aggregate debt of the 151 cities at the close of the year was $1,531,462,655. The largest per capita debt was reported by Newton, Mass., $125.58, the second largest by New York, $113.25, and the third by Boston, $108.

The tax levy per capita was largest for Boston, $30.16.

Some odd sources of municipal revenue reported were the following:

Privileges of maintaining area-ways, hitching posts, barber poles and bay windows and store fronts projecting beyond street line; the privilege of placing advertisements on street waste paper boxes, and the exclusive right to remove dead animals.

MAYOR CONVICT TO BE COOK.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 8.—Former Mayor William Belcher of Paterson began to-day his term of twelve years in State prison.

After his physical condition improves he will be placed in the kitchen where he will assist in the preparation of food.

YALE EDITOR BANKRUPT.

NEWPORT AWAITS COMING OF THE MILLS TWINS AND MOTHER

Miss Beatrice Mills.

Miss Gladys Mills.

PRETTY TWINS SOON TO JOIN NEWPORT SET.

Arrival Will Give Fresh Impetus to Social Whirl at the Resort.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—The arrival in Newport from Europe of the charming twin sisters, Miss Gladys Mills and Miss Beatrice Mills, who in company with their mother are on the ocean, is eagerly awaited at that fashionable seaside spot, to give a fresh and lively impetus to social activities.

The two pretty girls are very popular. Word has been received that they are bringing with them some wonderful dogs of a rare French poodle strain which are said to be in high favor in the exclusive circles of London and Paris.

It is also whispered that Mrs. Ogden Mills has found a treasure in a personage who can be depended upon to look after the details of a dinner in a way that will insure that perfection upon which the hostess always insists.

LIVE IN WOODS WITH LEPER TO EFFECT CURE

Nurse, Bitter at "Inhumanity of Americans," Offers to Share His Fate.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Charles Cosman, a nurse at the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, is incensed at the treatment accorded George Rossett, the Syrian leper, in the mountains of West Virginia. Cosman has had a great deal of experience in nursing, and he spoke in bitter terms about what he called the inhumanity of American civilization. He said:

"What is this civilization that we speak of that allows a man to live like a snake in the brush? That allows him, perhaps, to die of madness from isolation? Has the government, having allowed this Syrian to enter the country four years ago, the right to permit this man to be segregated like a human viper, because, through no fault of his own, he has contracted a contagious disease?

"What about the mountain streams at which this man drinks and washes? Does not this same stream supply the water for perhaps a settlement farther down the current? Suppose a traveler even lies down and touches the spot where the leper has been, will he not carry the disease into the settlement.

"I am willing to live in the forest with this leper, taking care of him after the manner of a professional nurse, wearing rubber gloves, devoting my life to him until his death occurs. Then I will return to what you call civilization. All I ask is that my expenses during the time be guaranteed."

FAT AS CAUSE FOR DIVORCE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, August 8.—Obesity as a cause of divorce has taken its place in the court records. The Supreme Court granted a limited divorce to Mrs. Sarah Link of No. 204 Forsyth street after her husband, Louis, a tailor, who married her when she was sylph-like, and lost his love for her because she was fat, had declined to contest the suit.

Everything was settled amicably between husband and wife, and in court yesterday the tailor said, with a trace of the old-time affection, that if his wife ever reduced her weight to 130 pounds he would have the divorce annulled, and they would go keeping house again. Mrs. Link now weighs 225 pounds.

HUG AND A KISS

ALSO PULL AT GIRL'S HAIR

VALUED $5,000

TAUNTON, Aug. 8.—Anna Irene Sherman of Fall River wants $5,000 damages because, she alleges, George Simmons of that city hugged and kissed her and then pulled her hair. She has entered suit in the Superior Court here.

The hugs, kisses and hair pulling happened on July 5, according to her declaration. She was in a carriage, riding with Simmons, when she says he hugged and kissed her, and then when she resisted him, he pulled her hair.

BLEND OF IRISH AND YANKEE TO SAVE IRELAND

Dr. Douglas Hyde on Return to Erin Sees Salvation of Island in Union of Ideas.

That a blend of Irish ideas with American ideas is to be the salvation of Ireland is again emphasized by Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of the Gaelic League, in an address given by him in Dublin on his return from his tour in this country, according to cable dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

In saying this Dr. Hyde repeats opinions expressed by him in an interview with the BOSTON AMERICAN when he was here last December.

Dr. Hyde was in this country seven months, sailing back home from New York on June 15 last. He is now back in Dublin. He has been given the freedom of the city and has reported to his home friends concerning his tour of this country to raise funds for the Gaelic League in Ireland. In his address of greeting in Dublin Dr. Hyde said in part:

"During my tour of the United States I became deeply impressed with the fact that, if we Irish are to succeed in Ireland, we must to some extent blend Irish ideas with American ideas."

When he was in Boston Dr. Hyde said:

"The characteristics of these men (the Irish) are brightness, wit, fluency of speech. The chief characteristics of the race next door (the English) are perseverance and business capacity.

"You in America are a magnificent blend of both.

"There is a great likeness between the people of Ireland and of this great country (America). Irishmen here have left their own mark on the mind, character and spirit of the Americans. There are few places in which there is not a drop or two of the blood of the Gael."

All through his American tour Dr. Hyde expressed greatest admiration for the American people, and said that many of our chief characteristics were just what the Irish people needed.

$20,000,000 IN COAL VEIN FIND

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 8.—No treasure trove ever found equalled in value the fourteen-foot vein of Lykens red ash coal which prospectors of the Philadelphia Coal and Iron Company to-day found several hundred feet beneath the earth's surface at Glendower Colliery at Taylorsville, Heckersville Valley. The vein contains millions of tons of the highest priced anthracite coal. The find may be worth $20,000,000.

The vein is now being proved. It was found near the dividing line between Foster and Barry township. The local officials of the company are elated over the discovery. The company has been prospecting for coal at the Glendower Colliery for several months, and the officials were hopeful of striking a big vein, but did not expect to strike the Lykens Valley vein, the coal of which is worth at least $1 a ton more than the ordinary anthracite.

BEAUTIFY CITY, MRS. EDDY AIDS

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 8.—Through the suggestion of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, and by vote of the Concord city government, Concord is to have, in the improvement of State street, one of the finest avenues in New Hampshire. This improvement is the result of a request to the city government by Mrs. Eddy, and the action of her friends, who have offered to bear half of the expense of concreting [illegible] of the city's leading and most beautiful thoroughfare.

'CHUTE BROKEN; FELL 1,000 FEET

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 8.—William Johnson, a balloonist, was badly injured in an ascension at a fair in Little Falls yesterday, and to-day it is not believed he can live. His spine is broken at the base of the brain. In coming down with a parachute the apparatus failed to work, and Johnson fell upon the railroad tracks.

It is estimated that Johnson was 3,000 feet in the air when he left the balloon to make what is called a double parachute descent. The first parachute opened well and Johnson descended about two-thirds the distance. Then he attempted to open the other parachute. It is thought that the second parachute opened, but that the strings broke, permitting it to collapse.

REJECT SCHEME TO FILTER CITY WATER

BURLINGTON, Vt., Aug. 8.—At last night's city meeting the resolution to authorize bonding for $75,000 to install a plant to filter water from Lake Champlain for city use was dismissed. A committee was appointed to investigate pollution of the lake and another committee was appointed to confer with the State Board of Health, which has ordered all faucets in the city to be labelled "Dangerous; Boil before using."

UNCLE SAM UP AGAINST THE QUINCY EGG

Vermont Man Charges He Got Plebeian Chicks, Though Promised Blue-Blooded Ones.

FRAUD CRY RUFFLES HENS

The United States Government is up against the Quincy egg to-day.

Construction of the Panama Canal and other national undertakings pale into insignificance beside this second greatest egg question of history which Uncle Sam has been forced to tackle. The first great egg problem was "Which came first, the hen or the egg?" That hasn't been settled yet. And this present one threatens to be equally vexing.

John H. Bent of Quincy has been advertising, it is alleged, that he had some very superior eggs from which fancy fowl could be hatched. Rhode Island Reds, for instance, were one of the breeds which these eggs would produce, and all for a ridiculously reasonable price. Such were the alluring advertisements, so the federal officers assert, which Bent sent broadcast through the mails.

Vermont Fancier Attracted.

A Vermont hen fancier, Mack by name, saw this advertisement and it looked good to him. According to his complaint, he ordered some of the eggs. He was pained to find that the eggs did not produce the specified results. Instead of blueblooded fowl, they gave forth only the most plebeian hens of the most common or garden variety, upon which he made complaint to the Federal officers.

Assistant Deputy United States Marshal Bancroft, of Boston, and Inspector McKay, of the Quincy police, descended upon Bent and his eggs. Bent declared the eggs were all that he claimed them to be. The Marshal said he had been using the United States mail to promote a scheme to defraud and forthwith arrested Bent and took him to Dorchester police station.

If the usual procedure is followed the eggs will now go before a Federal Commissioner to decide if they are better than and other eggs.

Meanwhile the Quincy hens are wrathful at this opprobrium that it cast on their fair name and fame.

FINED $1 FOR BAD LANGUAGE

Charles McCarthy, one of the New York men taking the places of the striking employes of the Corcoran carpet mills in Dedham, was fined $1 in Dedham District Court to-day for using insulting language toward William Whelan, one of the strikers. McCarthy appealed, then withdrew his appeal and paid the fine, which was the lowest allowed by law.

In imposing the lowest possible fine, Judge Emery Grover said that probably Whelan was as much to blame as McCarthy. The men quarrelled on the street.

DENY DIVORCE TO 'IRISH JOAN'

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The courts to-day rendered their decision in the suit of Maud Gonne McBride, the "Irish Joan of Arc," for divorce from her husband, Major John McBride, who was a prominent member of the Irish brigade during the Boer war, refusing to grant the divorce asked for by the wife. The separation granted Mrs. McBride a year ago, allowing her the custody of their child, will stand.

PULLIAM'S ORDERS GO OR HE'LL QUIT GAME

NATIONAL LEAGUE PRESIDENT MAKES VIGOROUS STATEMENT IN REGARD TO TROUBLE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—"It has been my ambition to one day own a National League franchise, but if blockheadishness, jobbery and bulldozing tactics are to be used by the oldest professional baseball organization in America, I would not have the best National League franchise as a gift."

This was part of a vigorous statement made to-day by President Harry A. Pulliam from his office two floors above that of the New York Baseball Club in the St. James building, in which he denounced the club's barring of Umpire Johnstone from the game with Chicago yesterday and steadfastly upheld the attitude of the umpires.

"The New York-Chicago game," declared President Pulliam, "scheduled for August 7, stands in the league records as forfeited to the Chicago club by the score 9 to 0, and that result has been tabulated and counted.

"I uphold the action of the umpires absolutely, and if I am not upheld by the National League Board of Directors I will not only resign my position as president of the National League but I will quit professional baseball forever. I am a National League man through and through and will never serve any other organization.

"I won't discuss my umpire assignments for to-day's game or any other game. They are confidential and are known only to me and my staff of umpires."

President Pulliam's office is in eleventh floor of the St. James building. On the ninth floor is located the offices of the New York club and from one of their windows the flag flew to-day announcing that here would be a game at the Polo grounds this afternoon.

Crowds of fans filled the corridors outside the clubs' offices, all presenting their checks for yesterday's game that was not played and receiving their money back. Sentiment among them was generally against the attitude and measures of the Giants.

Before hurrying to New York from Saratoga President Pullima said a few things in regard to the action of the New York club, that in some respects were even more forcible than what he said at his office to-day.

As the fact in regard to the failure of the teams to play has become known the position of the Giants grows weaker. The management of the club had it announced to the disappointed "fans" yesterday that Inspector Sweeney of the police department had barred Umpire Johnstone from the grounds because his presence was likely to cause a riot. When Inspector Sweeney heard of this he indignantly denied the statement. Johnstone was barred, the officer declared, by the New York management, and not by the police. Inspector Sweeney said he had ample force to have protected Johnstone, and never dreamed of a serious riot.

The action of the spectators themselves was the best evidence of how flimsy an excuse was that offered by John J. McGraw and his chief, John T. Brush, in barring Johnstone from the grounds. The great crowds filed out of the grounds without any further demonstration than a few hoots as they passed the clubhouse, although they went without getting their money back. The police were not called on to do anything toward preserving order.

Inspector Sweeney did not mince words in denying the explanation offered by the club management.

"I did not order that Johnstone be kept out and would not have done so had I been asked by the club officials," he said. "There were enough policemen at the grounds to protect Johnstone. If necessary I would have called on the entire force of the borough to protect him."

CLARKE OF PIRATES SAYS JOHNSTONE'S ACTION WAS RIGHT

Fred Clarke, manager and left fielder of the Pirates, when asked his opinion of the fiasco in New York yesterday, when Umpire Johnstone was refused admission at the Giants-Cubs game and forfeited the game to Chicago 9 to 0, said:

"I haven't learned any other facts than those printed in the papers. So far as I can learn, Umpire Johnstone was perfectly justified in his action. So long as he was refused admission at the gate he had every right in the world to forfeit the game to Chicago. This is just one of the cases where Pittsburg was not mixed up in the fight."

NEGROES RIOT IN CAPETOWN

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Aug. 8.—The riots here on the part of unemployed negroes are very serious. The blacks have dominated the eastern section of the city for the last two days. The police have been powerless to quell the rioters, although they hage charged frequently on the mob. The citizens are living in constant fear of their lives as no house is safe.

The streets are now patrolled by the Capetown Highland Volunteers with fixed bayonets, but there is no assurance that they will be able to preserve order and a bloody conflict may be precipitated at any moment.

BOXES EARS OF CHURCH PRINCE

ROME, Aug. 8.—Cardinal Della Volpe was the victim of a singular outrage which occurred this morning at the Vatican. A man named Barbacci waited upon the cardinal and demanded the payment of a debt. The cardinal denied that any debt existed, and Barbacci then assaulted the cardinal, boxed his ears and made his escape.

MILLIONS LOST FROM ESTATE, HEIRS FEAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Heirs of Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the famous dentist, what has become of his estate of $5, who died in Paris in 1897, are asking 000,000. The executors have made no report for nine years.

KILLS SELF BY TAKING ACID

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—Stephen T. Goddard, who has for many years and up to within a very short time been wharfinger at Commercial Wharf here, the landing place of the Newport and Wickford steamer and the Providence steamers, committed suicide at his home on John street yesterday by drinking carbolic acid.

The body was discovered in his room, the door having been locked. John Martin of New York and his wife, who are staying at the house with Mr. and Mrs. Goddard during the carnival celebration, forced the door and found the lifeless body of Goddard stretched across the bed and with an empty vial, which had contained carbolic acid, by his side.

COOL WEATHER FOR TWO DAYS

To-day's relief from the fearful hot spell will hold over through to-morrow probably.

The local forecast is:

"Cloudy with occasional light rains through the afternoon and warmer to-night. Thursday partly cloudy, probably followed by showers. Light winds."

Though it will be warmer to-night it is not expected to be uncomfortably so.

The temperature dropped from 71 degrees at 2 a. m. to 67 at 8 o'clock. It rose very slightly as the morning progressed. It is not expected to go over 71 or 72 to-day. The humidity was 100 per cent, at 8 o'clock, breaking into actual rain by 8:30 o'clock.

COERCION OF B. & M. EXPOSED BY CHURCHILL

Tells How Roads With Passes Bribes Politicians, Lawyers and Press.

IN A WHIRLWIND TOUR

Special to the Boston American.

HINSDALE, N. H., Aug. 8.—For forty minutes Winston Churchill had the audience at the Lincoln Club rally fairly hypnotized last night, and a pin could have been heard fall except during the outbursts of applause. Mr. Churchill had a strenuous day, being called upon at Brattleboro to address a meeting there. Then he was whirled to Winchester in an automobile and spoke for half an hour to an audience which almost filled the town hall.

Concluding this address, he left the whirlwind orator, D. C. Remick, to entertain, and was again speeding over the road to this place, where ex-Mayor Harry G. Sargent had held the people with his strenuous attack on the Boston & Maine Railroad's methods.

"It is outrageously unfair and unjust," said Mr. Sargent, "that the railroad corporation permitted to use public franchises should be allowed to use these franchises as a means of acquiring control over the Legislature and State officials by a method of bribery which would not be tolerated for a moment if cold, hard cash were used instead of a pass."

When Candidate Churchill entered the hall Mr. Sargent's strong voice was drowned by the burst of applause of welcome. At the informal reception the people rushed forward to meet him. Daniel McCormick of Hinsdale, Socialist candidate for Senator, said to Mr. Churchill: "You are the first man in the State who has dared to fight the Boston & Maine Railroad and I am with you."

Mr. Churchill took the platform in a burst of applause. He said in part:

Had a "Specific Instance."

"Before this Lincoln Republican Club movement started I went to a man who is very much looked up to in this State with the idea of getting him to become the head of it. He acknowledged the conditions and deplored them. But he said: 'I am afraid it will not be possible to put this political iniquity before the people so that they will understand it.' I told him that unless I was mistaken the people all over the State were beginning to understand and resent railroad rule. He said: 'You will have to give them specific instances.' I told him that I intended to do so. Here is one which I came across when speaking recently in a certain town:

"After the meeting was over when some of those present were coming up to shake hands with me I saw a tall man in the middle of the hall surrounded by several people who were apparently pleading with him. He finally tore himself away from them and came up and shook hands with me and told me he intended to go into the caucus and try to get Lincoln Republican delegates.

"I asked some of the people afterwards why they were pleading with him and they said they were trying to dissuade him from coming up and shaking hands with me. He was the postmaster in that town with three sisters dependent on him, and the so-called Republican leader in the town had come to him that day and told him that if he intended to support me he might expect to lose his office.

Was a Paid Hireling.

"That so-called Republican leader was, like all the other leaders, the paid hireling of the Boston & Maine Railroad, who make thousands of dollars every legislative session by trading upon the interests of the people.

"The subsidized weekly papers of this State, the proprietors and reporters of which use yellow mileage books—and by the way, I wonder whether the Boston & Maine Railroad was guilty of a sardonic joke when it made the mileage books of these newspapers yellow—seldom reply to my accusations against the railroad. They abuse me personally.

"If any man will take the trouble to go into the history of railroads in this State he will unearth a mine of corruption. During the notorious session of 1887, when the railroads were trying to gobble up each other, the Boston & Maine Railroad succeeded in carrying through the Hazen bill, which was vetoed by Governor Sawyer on the ground that it had been passed by corruption.

"The Governor said: 'To my mind it is conclusively shown that there have been deliberate and sytematic attempts at wholesale bribery to the servants of the people in this Legislature.'

Wants Corrupt Practices Act.

"One of the planks in the platform of the Lincoln Republican Club favors a corrupt practices act to prevent corporations from using money to influence elections in their favor. I do not think that even the weekly newspapers with their yellow mileage books have anything to say against such a plank. The iniquity of corporations spending money to gain legislative power is apparent."

MRS. LAWSON

LAID AT REST IN COTTAGE

AMID FLOWERS

The body of Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson, in a steel casket and tenderly carried in the arms of six of the oldest employees of Dreamwold, was placed in the "Nest" at Dreamwold yesterday afternoon, where it will lie until the permanent resting place is finished in the flower garden which surrounds the cottage. This little flower-surrounded cottage was Mrs. Lawson's favorite haunt.

The funeral services, at which only the members of the family were present, were held in Dreamwold Hall. Rev. Milo H. Gates, of the Church of the Intercession, New York, formerly the pastor of St. Stephen's, Cohasset, officiated. All over the great estate all work, except that absolutely necessary, has been suspended since Mrs. Lawson's death last Sunday.

CLIMB CRAGS IN GRANITE STATE

GLEN HOUSE, N. H., Aug. 8.—The Appalachian Mountain Club, in camp near here, has made several successful climbs in the vicinity. The party is being led by William A. Brooks and John Ritchie, Jr. … Dr. F. L. Banfield of Worcester, Miss Lily Weir of Chelsea, F. M. Howe of New York and W. R. Stevenson of Boston, climbed Huntington's Ravine. They took the Raymond path, coming far enough to see Raymond Cataract, then returned to Huntington path. Going to the head wall direct by means of a "chimney" they lunched at the top of the crags. The descent was by the carriage road.

ASKS $25,000 FOR WIFE'S LOVE FROM HER SISTER AND HUSBAND

Romance That Culminated in Elopement Now Ends in Alienation Suit.

Chelsea Man Declares Home Broken Up by Influence of Wife's Family.

LOWELL, Aug. 8.—In his suit for alienation of the affections of his pretty young wife, who he says has turned from him under the influence of her sister, Mrs. Sarah Richard, and her husband, Julius Richard, until recently residents of this city, Maurice Gilman of Chelsea declares that only the payment of $25,000 will ease his wounded heart.

The concluding scenes in this domestic drama, which began with an elopement a little over two years ago, are filled with vivid interest, especially on the part of the Hebrews of this city.

Seven years ago there came from Russia to this city Julius Richard and his wife. The husband had been a soldier in the army of the Czar and tiring of the hardships sought refuge and wealth in the New World. He was successful. From a humble beginning in the junk business he accumulated a small fortune.

Miss Fannie Adelman, a sister of Mrs. Richard, later arrived from Russia. She was taken under the wing of her elder sister and at once became a favorite.

Miss Adelman is a remarkably pretty girl. A wealth of dark, waving hair and "eyes of the East" made her a beauty among her set and many were the attentions she received from young men. While in her sixteenth year she created a surprise among her friends and relatives by declaring that she was married to Maurice Gilman, a young man whom her associates had believed was simply a friend. The marriage ceremony was performed by Judge Clark of the Lowell Municipal Court, on May 18, 1904.

Returns to Sister's Home.

The young couple went to live in Lynn, where the husband was employed. A year ago a baby was born and following this Mrs. Gilman returned to her sister's home to reside, where she remained until a few weeks ago, when Julius Richard broke up his abode at No. 160 Howard street and went, it is said, to Ohio to live. This followed his failure in business, when he claimed his entire fortune was swept away. Mrs. Gilman went to live in Lynn, where she had secured employment as a tailoress.

Joseph Richard, who is engaged in the junk business on Suffolk street, where he was formerly in partnership with his brother Julius, stated to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that his brother is anxious to defend the suit brought against him.

"The young people could not get along together; Gilman did not love his wife, although she loved him," he said. "There were many trials for the girl to go through and all the sweetness of life seemed to have been taken away from her a short time after she was married.

Hope Was in Child.

"When the baby came we thought that things would turn for the better. Their pretty little home in Lynn had been broken up and the two were living apart. Gilman had secured a lawyer and was going to try to get a divorce.

"Even when he saw his son he did not soften, and on the plea of the young mother Julius took her to his home. He took her in his home to protect her.

"My brother will be on hand to make his answer to the charges made against him in this suit and so will his wife, who I am sure has only acted with the kindest and most sincere sisterly love."

LABOR'S BEST FRIENDS JOIN INDEPENDENTS

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 8.—Steadily the membership of the Independence League of Massachusetts is growing in this city. One of the most promising features of the organization is the personnel of the membership. Politicians have not been encouraged to join and the danger of factional divisions is thus avoided.

The members of the league are tried and true friends of organized labor working in harmony with men who are earnestly opposed to boss rule and trust control of legislation.

President R. A. Hennessey says the league widens the scope of the Wage Earners' Clubs' usefulness. He shows how much stronger the influence of the wage earners can be made in the field of politics when it has the support of business men and others who, while not wage earners in the strict interpretation, are ready and eager to support the candidates and principles indorsed by them.

Secretary Thomas L. Hisgen of the League here and President of the Four Brothers' Independent Oil Company, is an ardent Independence League man. That he is a good fighter is well known, on account of the battle he has waged against the Standard Oil Trust. He favors measures that organized labor is urging, but he goes further and favors aggressive legislation against corporations seeking special privileges and monopolies. He says he is enlisting good men in the cause of the League daily. He expects a membership of 300 reliable voters by September 1.

The officers of the League are simply waiting for the League's new literature before beginning livelier work.

WAR ON OVER FOOD IN NAVY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Secretary Bonaparte of the Navy is to-day waging war against the contractors who supply food to the navy. He has sent a letter to contractors serving the navy at New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk, demanding that they show why their contracts should not be cancelled. The secretary declares that the contractors took the contract at a figure too low for the supply of good food and that they have been delivering food not up to the standard.

ARTIST THROWN IN AUTO CRASH, UNHURT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—Elliott Gregory, the New York artist, had a narrow escape from serious injury in Bellevue avenue early last evening, when his phaeton was run into by Dr. William T. Bull's automobile. Mr. Gregory's carriage was turned over on top of him, but when drawn from under he was able to walk to a cab.

90 LITHOGRAPHERS OUT.

9-POUND GIRL NOT WELCOMED

Because his wife presented him with another girl instead of a boy, as he wished, is believed to be the cause of the strange disappearance of George E. Gottlick, who has been missing from his home, No. 124 West Ninth street, South Boston, since last Saturday.

He was happy and contented, Mrs. Gottlick says, until the doctors told him it was a girl and weighed nine pounds. He went out to see a friend, as he said, but failed to return.

The police are on the lookout for him.

SENATE FIGHT HOT IN ROXBURY

With six candidates for the Senate, including two contractors, two undertakers, a lawyer and a claim agent for the Elevated road, there promises to be the liveliest battle in years for the Democratic nomination in the new senatorial district comprising Wards 18, 19 and 22, in Roxbury. Each ward has two candidates. They are:

Representative John J. Butler of Ward 18; Thomas E. Raferty, Ward 18; William W. Clarke and William Cleary of Ward 19; Mark Lynch and Jeremiah Hourin of Ward 22.

SUBWAY FLOOD TIES UP CARS

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—All traffic in the subway below Fourteenth street was tied up last evening by a flood as a result of the storm. There were two feet of water on the tracks.

In many cases the guards were overpowered and thrown aside as the doors were opened and the passengers rushed out to escape possible dangers. They had to walk long distances in the darkness, to stations.

CRAZY, POISONS CATTLE; JAILED

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., Aug. 8.—After roaming the woods for three days and nights and threatening to set fire to a number of houses, a crazy man giving his name as Bemis was caught by Sheriff Fairbanks after an all night chase and is now in jail.

Bemis has attacked a number of persons during his wild career and has poisoned a number of cattle and a valuable horse. He is about 35 years old and says he had a wife and family, but will not tell where.

A Prominent Manufacturer

In Lynn, who has used BU-LAX himself for a long time and who has recommended it to many persons, was asked what he could say in its favor. This is his reply in his own language:

"I have used your Bubier's Laxative Salz in my family for many months. I find it a most excellent preparation to depend upon as a regulator of the stomach and bowels. I look upon it as one of my household necessities."

Yours respectfully,
H. S. JOHNSON.

There are many ills which have their origin in an impaired digestion, such as headache, heartburn, water-brash, dizziness, sallow complexion, and many others. These all disappear when the stomach and bowels are restored to a healthy state by taking BU-LAX as directed on the bottle. BU-LAX is pleasant to take, safe and sure and it cures constipation.

SCORE SOCIETY WOMEN FOR DRINK EVIL

Bishop Shanley at Providence Says Habit Now Has the Stamp of Fashion.

TALKS TO ABSTAINERS

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 8.—The National Catholic Total Abstinence Union convention opened at 9 a. m. to-day with a solemn high mass, the Rev. Fr. O'Neil being celebrant. The delegates marched to the Cathedral, headed by Reeves's American Band.

The sermon was preached by Bishop Walter J. Shanley of Hartford, Ct., a past president of the National Union, who said in part:

"History has taught that the nations in which intemperance was rife came to ruin. It has also taught that a nation was never higher than the virtue of its women. Wherever woman has been degraded by intemperance the nation has gone to pieces.

Drinking in Society.

"It is to be hoped that history will not repeat itself in the case of England and the United States, where drinking prevails among women in high society, and where drinking has the stamp of fashion and is becoming the custom of women in the humble walks of society. The lessons which history teaches challenges our energy, zeal and perseverance in combatting the evils of intemperance, which wrecks homes, ruins lives and brings disgrace on the community.

"We belong to a militant church, in which the warfare is carried on not only by the Pope, bishops and the clergy, but also the laity. Universal consecration is the church's law. There is no fighting by proxy. There is no more division in the Catholic church. All should be engaged in combatting the formidable array of evils warring against God and the church, chief among which is intemperance. If we are militant members of a militant church, the warfare in which we are engaged will not differ from that in which our own spiritual welfare consists. We profit the whole body by living for our own highest good. No man lives for himself, that is, no man is intended to live for himself. That is a principle of Christian society.

Must Live for Others.

"We should in a measure live for others and care for ourselves in order the more effectually to live for others. The nearest, the most imperative and the surest way to benefit others is to live for one's own highest good. The higher, the stronger, the man is, the more easily can he raise and strengthen others. The Catholic Total Abstinence Union has a mission of practical influence in society. It has a grand mission, and has a wide field of labor. Fidelity to its Catholic principles will bring its work to a successful issue, will render glory to God for the work done the brethren through its light which will prevail against the world's darkness."

Noted Prelates Attend.

Among the notable prelates of the Church present are: Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, Rt. Rev. Bishop Shanley of Hartford, Ct., Rt. Rev. Matthew Harkins, Bishop of Providence; Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, Archbishop Kean of Iowa, Cardinal Gibbons and hundreds of priests.

The convention meets to-day in Infantry Hall, presided over by Bishop Regis Canevin of Pittsburg, the president. Mayor Dyer will extend a welcome to the delegates.

There will be a big house of fans to see the Pirates play the Tenneyites at the South End Grounds this afternoon, as it will be the former's last appearance in this city for some time to come.

The Tenneyites in the series up to date have showed how well and poorly they can play the national game. They have pulled off all kinds of fast stunts and at the same time they have made some of the dumbest plays imaginable.

Manager Fred Tenney says there will be a different complexion to events at the links this afternoon, and avers that his men will show the club from Pittsburg that they are not so warm. Boston has only won one game from Pittsburg up to date, and it is now high time that they capture another.

"Little Cy" May Pitch To-Day.

"Little Cy" Young, who won the opening game from the Pirates last Saturday, will probably deliver the pellets for the home club. The railroad man is in good shape these days and possibly may give the Pirate fellows a defeat for the second time in succession.

Vic Willis, who performed in the opening contest, may do the pitching for the visitors. He is out for revenge on his old teammates and will strain every muscle in order to retrieve the laurels wrested from him last Saturday.

Altogether the game this afternoon should be a bloody one, and if the fans do not get their money's worth then the wiseacres are off their dope.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Lynch was caught at the plate in the fourth on an attempted double steal. Clarke started to go down to second, Witherup flashed the sphere to Tenney, who slammed it to Needham, catching the Pirate at the home pan by yards.

* * *

Fred Tenney took a big lead off second in the first inning, but Wagner, who got Lynch's throw, dropped the ball in a mixup.

* * *

There was a large delegation of Brown students at the game to see the former Providence college man, Lynch, twirl.

* * *

Beaumont made a good running catch of Strobel's fly near second base in Boston's second inning.

* * *

Tenney made a swell catch of Leach's foul fly back of first in the fourth inning, but Witherup failed to cover the bag, thus preventing a double play, Mike Lynch being on base at the time.

* * *

Dave Brain hit the ball to the left fence in the third, but Umpire Klem called the smash a foul.

* * *

The Pirates certainly played the hit-and-run game to perfection yesterday.

* * *

Witherup showed his inexperience whenever he got into a tight place.

TENNY AND KLEM FIGHT

At last Manager Fred Tenney and Umpire Klem have come to blows over their old discord, the cause of which is the disappearance of the old balls used in each day's game. Tenney has long accused Klem of making away with them, and the latter each time has been greatly troubled with a twitching of the knuckles, only being prevented from coming to blows with the National's head by the presence of policemen.

Yesterday Tenney got hold of the umpire after the game and attempted to search him for balls, whereupon the latter broke away, and, with ball in hand, dealt Tenney a good clip. Tenney got back at his man and administered a good, stiff return, and then the two men were separated.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 8.—If the weather permits, there will be a double-header between the Naps and Pilgrims to-day. The prediction, however, is for showers this afternoon.

Manager Collins has selected Young and Harris for slab duty, while Manager Lajoie has decided to pin his hopes upon Bernhart and Hess. All of the pitchers of both teams are now in good shape. Bemis and Bay may get back into the fray to-day or to-morrow, and then Lajoie expects to shoot forward with a jump at the expense of Boston and the Washingtons, who come here Friday. He figures that it will not be a hard task to crush the former champions now that Tannehill has had his turn.

While he will not discuss the matter, Manager Collins advises inquirers to wait and see for themselves. He says his team is playing better ball every day and will make trouble for all of them before the season closes.

IKE BRADLEY OUTPOINTED BY DELMONT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 8.—Al Delmont of Medford obtained an easy decision over Ike Bradley of England last night at the Lymansville Casino, not having to go his limit, with the possible exception of the last round. Bradley stayed the limit of fifteen rounds, but suffered terrible punishment and was clearly outclassed from start to finish. He lacked aggressiveness, and landed only five blows with any force throughout the whole contest.

He led scarcely once until the final round, when goaded on by the shouts of his seconds and the crowd, which was clearly with him, he tried to make a grandstand finish and land a knockout if possible. He was met with a stiff resistance, and although he carried Delmont off his feet by the fierceness of his assault at first the latter recovered and some hot fighting resulted.

So eager were the two boxers and so great was the enthusiasm that the sound of the bell was drowned out and Referee Frank Herrick had to pull them apart. The decision was given to Delmont on points, the referee saying that one round could not win a fight unless by a knockout. There was no disagreement with this decision, but the sports were thoroughly disgusted with the spirit, or lack of spirit, shown by the Englishman. If he had showed the ginger that he had in the last round five or six rounds earlier he would have stood a show of getting the award.

AL KAUFMANN WINS IN THE FIFTH ROUND

Fred Bradley of Roxbury succumbed to Al Kaufmann, the giant Californian, at the Lincoln A. C. last night in the fifth round of the heavyweight battle scheduled for fifteen sessions.

Bradley was completely outclassed, and the coast slasher rammed one hand after the other on to the Roxbury strong boy, sending him to the mat shortly after the fifth round opened, and the fallen foe was unable to rise at the count of ten.

It was a terrific slugging affair while it lasted. Both let fly freely, and Bradley was particularly aggressive, while Kaufmann took his time, looking for openings, but in mix-ups he showed in his true colors for fast action.

The loser took a bad beating for the distance traveled, as Kaufmann raked him with body punches which put him in such a weakened state that he was easy prey for the Westerner to put on the finishing touches.

Wicked hooks Kaufmann slammed into Bradley's body with all the force of his immense bulk behind them, and they took all the steam out of the Hub fighter, till he was floundering around the ring, swinging wildly, and completely at Kaufmann's mercy, yet the big fellow was unable to accept many chances he had to end the job owing to Bradley's awkward style.

Bradley fought gamely against greater odds and wore himself out by his reckless wading in, as Kaufmann met him with stiff hooks or straightened his left arm, smashing Bradley's face and causing the latter to fall short in his leads and chops.

The Roxbury blacksmith never winced from the gruelling he got, and after the second round was sent in to get close and finish his man or take the consequences, as it was the only chance he had. He tore in like a young Hercules and rushed his big antagonist, but ran into some vicious welts which proved his undoing. At the end of the fourth round he was on the verge of caving and the gong pulled him through, but he was unfit to respond to the following round.

Kaufmann saw his opportunity and did not wait as Bradley tried to get away from punishment. He went in and ripped in a right uppercut to the jaw which staggered Bradley, sending him spinning backward. Groping around the ring, he was unable to offer any resistance and was an easy mark. Kaufmann continued to hook for the jaw. Under a shower of right and left hooks Bradley was borne to the mat on his hands and knees, with his head protruding out of the ring. One of his seconds threw water on him and rubbed his head, but he was unable to rise at the end of the count.

FIGHT BY ROUNDS AS DESCRIBED BY AN EXPERT

In the first round of the Kaufmann-Bradley bout at Chelsea last night, Kaufmann injured the knuckle of the index finger on his right hand, and he had to favor the hand all he could after that. It came as a result of connecting on Bradley's head and was all puffed up after hostilities were over.

Kaufmann's possibilities as a heavyweight champion may exist, but they did not have a chance to crop out in the bout. His hitting powers could not be disputed, as he is there with the hefty wallop and knows the right way to use it. He acknowledged that he lacks ring generalship and could not show his best against Bradley on account of the latter's peculiarly awkward ring methods. He did show flashes of brisk action when Bradley mixed it and at such times was a dangerous looking boxing machine. He said that he was still seeking experience and held himself back some rather than set the pace hot and leave himself open.

He may be a second Jeffries if he improves at the same rate, as Jeff was every bit as slow and novicelike when his ring career began, but he does not pretend to be able to fill the champion's shoes quite yet.

Kaufman Looked Formidable.

When the pair shaped up in the ring Kaufmann was groomed to the highest notch of form and his 200 pounds of flesh and bone made him look more formidable than his short opponent. His appearance took immediately with the fans who could not see equal comparison with Bradley.

Behind the Californian was Harry Foley, Bob Deady and Joe Thomas, while Bradley was esquired by John Mooney, Frank Kaveney and Jack Johnson. There was no waiting or disputes. Kaufmann simply crossed the ring to size up the kind of bandages that Bradley was wearing, and with the announcement by Referee Maffit Flaherty that straight Queensberry rules would prevail the boys were sent on their way.

ROUND ONE—Both led short and fell into a clinch. Kaufmann was the first to open up his batteries and let go right and left hooks, forcing Bradley to smother up. Bradley whipped his left on the wind and Kaufmann retaliated by hooking with right and left, driving Bradley to a clinch.

Bradley pointed his left well, sending Kaufmann's head back, but it was nothing to the jab Bradley got an instant later which caused the claret to flow from his nose. Bradley swung right and left, but missed as his extreme nervousness caused him to misjudge distance. While close up Bradley hooked to the body with left and shot the same hand over for the head. Kaufmann planted a couple of steamy jabs on Bradley's face and made it easy for him to smash with right on the body. Bradley tapped lightly with left. He kept busy while tied up but he suffered from Kaufmann's straight arm work.

Exchanges About Even.

ROUND TWO—Kaufmann connected with a left hook for the head. Bradley tried the same hand but missed. He did better with his right and drove it on to Kaufmann's body. Bradley rushed into a right hook and ran into straight left. Bradley stirred things up by slamming with right to the wind and then with left to same place. Kaufmann got going and drove Bradley into the corner confused, but he managed to slip out, only to back into the opposite corner with Kaufmann on top of him and smashing to the body with either hand. Bradley pulled out of his trance and drove his right to the body and followed it up with right and left. Both exchanged rights and lefts fighting furiously on the ropes with Bradley getting decidedly the worst of it.

ROUND THREE—Bradley opened brilliantly by getting his right over and forcing a clinch. Bradley worked the trick again and forced Kaufmann on the ropes. There was a hot melee and Kaufmann cut loose with both hands, with Bradley going to pieces under the shower. Bradley had lots of stuff in him and started into lead but bumped against a left hook. He made a vicious hook for the body with his left, but Kaufmann sidestepped and came back with a hard left to the body.

Kaufman Lands a Hard One.

Bradley swung right for the jaw and just grazed Kaufmann's head. Bradley scored with right on the wind, but left his jaw open and Kaufmann crossed him with his right. It staggered Bradley and Kaufmann sprung an uppercut which failed to land squarely. Again he crossed his right and Bradley was lurching around unable to offer any attack, but Kaufmann could not fasten on the punch before the bell.

ROUND FOUR—Bradley made some attempt at offence and led left to the body but received Kaufmann's right. Kaufmann jabbed him but could not escape a wild right which caught him on the top of the head. Bradley aimed a straight left for the chin and scored. Kaufmann was inclined to mug with his glove when they were tied up. Bradley cleared for action and planted right and left on body. Kaufmann missed a deadly left and Bradley caught him on the jaw with his left. Kaufmann stabbed with left and made Bradley dizzy. A second later he found a resting place on Bradley's jaw with his right and the Hub boy hung on to avoid being finished. Kaufmann shook himself free and sailed in, but his aim was poor and Bradley lasted to the bell.

Bradley Was All In.

ROUND FIVE—Kaufmann connected with his right to the body. Bradley was about all in and could not locate his punches. Kaufmann drove him into a corner and uppercut to the jaw with right. He ploughed in with either hand, as Bradley was beyond resisting and took a bunch of rights and lefts on the jaw which sent him down and he was counted out.

In the first preliminary Billy Clinton won by a knockout from Denney Ryan in the fifth round.

Frank Adams and Jimmy Hanlon had a fierce argument for six rounds when Jimmy was disqualified for hitting low.

AUTO DIRECTORS TAKE ACTION

By J. C. KERRISON.

The directors of the Bay State Automobile Association, at their meeting yesterday afternoon, took action which it is hoped and desired will have a wholesome effect upon those drivers of motor vehicles who make themselves objectionable and sometimes dangerous to others on the highways. A member of the association reported to the board a case of exceptionally obnoxious driving on the part of a hired chauffeur, who, without any rhyme or reason, attempted to run another machine into a ditch. When remonstrated with, this driver said he intended to ditch the second machine. The board placed the matter in the hands of President Speare, with the request that he take it up with the Massachusetts Highway Commission, and if possible secure the revocation of the license of the offending operator. The association will in the future, as it has in the past, do what it can toward protecting the rights of each individual motorist. When the motorist himself is in the wrong, it will do its utmost to bring him to justice. There is no one thing more disadvantageous to the best interest of the sport than the hoggish actions of some few operators. It is to these that the efforts of the club will be directed.

* * *

That nothing succeeds like success was eminently proven at the meeting of the board of directors yesterday when fifty-four motorists were elected to membership. The handsome and comfortable quarters of the association on Dartmouth street are proving just the things necessary for the future of the organization. Some of the best known members of the local motor world can be found at lunch there almost every noon.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. E. U. Clarke, accompanied by their son, toured from Boston to Newport yesterday afternoon.

* * *

The scheme of reconstructing the old Saugus course into an automobile race track is again to be advocated. Interested parties have secured an option on the land adjoining. If the right kind of support is given, it is possible that a three-mile auto track will be eventually constructed there. The idea of the promoters is to so bank and widen the present track that motor racing can be carried on for a year or so, and to eventually construct what promises to be the largest motor track in this country. Automobile track racing is rather a doubtful business proposition. At first blush there seems to be a whole lot of money in the game, but on second consideration, judging from what experience has taught, the game is not worth the candle. Still there is an opportunity for some charitably disposed individual (or individuals) to try his luck at making money in motor track racing.

* * *

Racing the engine is one of the unnecessary abuses to which many cars are subjected by careless or ignorant chauffeurs and drivers. The practice of withdrawing the clutch without retarding the spark, of letting the car stand with the motor working away until the machine shakes from the vibrations, of using the low gear with the motor turning over at stop speed when a higher gear could be used with a little more careful handling—these things take more out of a car than many miles of ordinary road work, waste fuel, cause an unpleasant racket and are of no use anyway.

HANLON SAYS NATIONALS WILL WIN

CINCINNATI, Aug. 8.—"I'm willing to go broke on the National League in the world's championship series this Fall," remarked Manager Hanlon, during a discussion of the respective merits of certain National and American League teams. "Over in New York there are followers of the game who predict that, if the world's series is between the New York Nationals and the New York Americans, that the Giants will be nowhere in the fight. These are the same men who picked the Philadelphia Athletics to show up the Giants last Fall and then fell down in their predictions. I know every man on that New York American League team except the first baseman, Chase. And, knowing them as I do, together with having a pretty good line on McGraw's team, I do not hesitate to say that the Giants would find the Highlanders as easy picking in the world's series as were the Atheltics for them last Fall.

"If the Giants do not finish first in the National League, you will find that the teams that beat them are as strong, if not stronger, than the New Yorks were last season, and that means that they will have no trouble downing anything that the American League can send them. In the world's series this Fall my money will go on the National League team, be it Chicago, Pittsburg or New York that gets into the games."

SPEEDY MOVES MADE BY CANDIDATES FOR READVILLE GRAND CIRCUIT PRIZES

The Readville race track is a busy proposition these days with 250 horses striving to make good at the Grand Circuit meeting, which opens the 20th of this month.

The best thing that has occurred in the workouts to date is Blue Hill trotting a mile in 2:19½, the last half in 1:08, which is the second fastest mile in the world for a colt at that age this year, and he is eligible for the American Horse Breeder Futurity Stake, in which one of the most prominent starters is Bisa, in John Young's stable, from the Allen Farm in Pittsfield, Mass., that has gone a mile in 2:22 flat.

Throughout the country there is intense interest for as far West as Topeka, Kan., is one eligible for the same stake that has stepped a mile in 2:20¼, the last in 1:07½.

Last year this stake was won by the filly Loma in 2:19, the fastest heat. In order to accomplish this feat she trotted the middle half in 1:05.

Expect Two Trips in 2:17.

With this in mind, horsemen of experience thoroughly believe that either Blue Hill or Bisa can step two trips in 2:17 or better.

Other interesting workouts occurring to date are John Dickerson, the noted New York trainer, who yesterday was employed by the syndicate that paid $10,000 for Cochato last Spring, with the expectation that he could win all the futurity stakes through the Grand Circuit and Lexington, drove that colt two miles in 2:16¼ and 2:14½. He hardly drew a breath after the workout.

With the speed that this colt has demonstrated, having stepped an eighth in 14 2-5 seconds—a 1:55 gait—local horsemen feel that when he goes against the great Gay Bingen that he will well know that he has been to a horse race. "Johnny Dick" said that after his workout that he never rode two easier miles in his life. How much faster he might have gone he could not tell, but feels like George Leavitt, that three trips in 2:10 will not beat him if his future workouts between now and his Readville race are as agreeable as was his last one.

Other Notable Workouts.

The best workouts to-date was "ddie" Rice driving the thirteen-year-old mare Surreet (2:06¼), a mile in 2:36*, and repeating back in 2:07¼. "ddie" has a bug now that he must hit the good fellows with her in the free-for-all, and he will be seen with the gay colors of the Rice family doing the honors in the sulk.

Other fast horses that will start the Grand Circuit at Readville are Fred Clarke with Burna Girl, in 2:15; Johnny Dickenson, with Reanorda in 2:12. The Judge, in 2:12½; Tokio, in 2:13¾; last half in 1:04½; Jack Wall, with Nancy Nelson, 2:14¼, right to her record; Bert Fowler, with Mendolite 2:18¼, in 2:09¾; Jim Carpenter, with Fred S in 2:12¾, and with Budd, that good green trotter, who has lowered a mile in 2:10½; Sam Hastings, with Johnny Smoker, in 2:18, last half in 1:05½; Jake Edwards, driving for his self, Owissia a mile in 2:12¼, and is going to ship her to Poughkeepsie, and when the robbons south will cut her loose at Lexington, Kt., for all the coin in sight, as will George Leonard with Chim Bells, who also is headed for hotter climate than Boston.

BALDWIN WONT MEET ROBSON

Spike Robson hurt his hand in the six-round bout with Tommy Murphy at Philadelphia Monday night and the bout with Matty Baldwin for next week at Chelsea is off. Robson will not engage in the contest with Stinger at Philadelphia Thursday and will sail for England Saturday. He will return about October and will then seek a longer engagement with Tommy Murphy and with Matty Baldwin, with whom he was bo[illegible] to battle in Chelsea next week.

BAKER GETS THE DECISION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 8.—Harry Baker got the decision over Frankie Neil last night in a fast and furious fight. Up to the thirteenth round it was about even, but with the opening of this Neil began slowly wearing Baker down. The latter was in at the finish, however, and was awarded the decision.

CIRCUIT RACES PUT OFF.

BUFFALO, Aug. 8.—The Grand Circuit races scheduled for yesterday afternoon were postponed on account of the heavy track.

YOU MAY WIN THIS BIG DOLL HOUSE

Every Little Girl Has a Chance to Get It

By Beatrice Fairfax

HAVE you ever owned a doll's house, lovely and complete from the front door to the attic?

Every little girl has a chance to own the beautiful Happy House.

All she has to do is to write a letter telling the Doll Editor how she would keep house and look after her babies.

The best letter wins the house.

Try your very best, dear little girls, for I can assure you that Happy House is well worth trying for.

Just imagine your dollies walking up those wide front steps and sitting on the veranda! Or they may ring the bell and ask if Mrs. Happy is at home.

You know she has a cupboard full of the loveliest pretend things to eat.

Mrs. Happy will ask her visitors to go upstairs into her pretty bedroom and take off their hats.

Then they will go down and sit in the parlor or perhaps on the veranda until supper time.

The children will be called in from the tent, and after their faces and hands have been washed and their hair combed they will go and say, "How do you do?" to the visitors.

If you owned this lovely house and family you would have such good times with them.

You have all been to school, and I am sure you know how to write a very nice letter.

When I was a little girl such a beautiful toy would have filled me with delight. I know exactly how little girls feel about dollies and doll houses, because I loved them so myself.

And so I want you all to try your very best. Address your letters to the Doll House Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

Away With the Man Who Makes a Joke Out of a Wedding

By Winifred Black

THE Rev. Father Johnson of Racine, Wis., preached a sermon last Sunday which set the whole village by the ears.

It was about the "funny man" who hangs old shoes on the back of a wedding carriage, and paints signs on the baggage of a bridal couple. Father Johnson called things by some good, plain, old English names in that sermon, and if I had been there to hear him it would have been hard work for me to keep from rushing up into the pulpit and telling Father Johnson just what a good, sensible man he was, right then and there.

The grouchy man who says the world is going to the dogs because people eat and drink what they like without consulting him is bad enough, but he is an effulgent and unanimous angel compared to the "funny man" who tries to make people believe that his friends' wedding is the most humorous thing that ever happened outside a Joe Miller joke book.

What is there so awfully funny about a wedding? I've been to a good many of them, and I confess I can't see the joke.

"For better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, until death us do part."

Where Is the Joke

DO you see anything side-splitting in that? What is there so irresistibly comic in the bride's mother, when she cries, to think that she can't stand between her little girl and trouble any longer?

What is there so funny in the bride's father's face, when he begins to realize that the little girl that has been the one tender spot in his heart for oh, so many dreary, humdrum, heart-aching years is going to leave him, and give her whole life into the hands of a comparative stranger?

What is there so ludicrous about the bridegroom, poor fellow, scared to death at the thought of the responsibility he is taking upon himself? And where is the joke about the bride—foolish, light-hearted thing, so happy she can hardly keep from crying—walking with blind eyes, straight into something which will turn out to be either the radiance of real happiness or the misery of enlightened sorrow?

A man who sees anything funny in a wedding would paint a comic picture on the side of a coffin, if he could.

His View of Life

HE'S the sort of person who 'calls a woman who has just been through the torturing agony of the divorce court a grass widow.

He's the kind of man who paints a funny sign and hangs it on the desk of the fellow-worker who is walking the floor in the very torment of the damned, while the little girl he promised to protect and cherish is looking into an open grave alone.

He's the kind of man who thinks it's funny to tell his wife how fat she is getting, and his brother what a thin old crow he's grown to be, when there's company present and neither the wife nor the brother can get a chance to say anything back.

He's the sort of man who jerks the chair out from under the preacher and ties a rope across the walk when there is going to be company at the school teacher's house.

What if the preacher does get hurt so that he is in the hospital for a year? Wasn't it fun to see him clutch at the air when he fell?

What if a nervous old woman is caught in the throat by the rope, and gets a shock that it takes her a month to get over? Wasn't her voice funny when she screamed?

Good Father Johnson, may you live long and preach many another sensible sermon!

LETTERS FROM GIRLS WHO STRIVE TO WIN

Here Are Letters from Readers Who Want the Doll House—See If You Can Write a Better Letter

CAN you write a letter on housekeeping better than any of the following? They were all written by little girls who want to win the big doll's house. See if you can do better than they have done.

Be sure and follow directions carefully. Remember—some little girl is going to have this doll's house for her very own. It might be you.

WOULD BE GOOD

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I would like to try for the doll's house. If I had it I would clean it and care for my children. I would be good and try to make them happy. I would dust, sweep and do all I could to care for it. I would take my children for a walk every day when I had my work all done. I would wash and clean them every morning. I would cook and sew for them.

EDNA ELGER, 11 years.
No. 67 Bowers street, West Medford.

A LITTLE MOTHER

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I am keeping house for my mother, as she is an invalid. I wash and iron for the house and the rest of the family. I mend and make clothes for my little sister and wash my back and front steps every morning. After that I do my dishes, bed, lamps, and get my little sister's hair combed and all cleaned up, and I put her to bed every night. I lock up the house, curl her hair and hear her prayers.

LIZZIE REDDEN, 12 years.
No. 155 Walnut street, Somerville.

WITH KIND WORDS

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

When I have a home and children to care for I will see that everything is put to rights every day. Each morning I will go to market and buy the freshest eatables possible. My children will be cleaned whenever needed, and as soon as they get old enough each will be given a certain piece of work to do. I will bring them up carefully, with plenty of kind words. I am twelve years old.

LUCINDA STERN.
No. 32 Bow street, Medford.

VERY ANXIOUS

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

What you wrote in the BOSTON AMERICAN about that beautiful doll house has made me very anxious to get it. I will keep my house very tidy. I will wash my floors and windows and do all my dusting very often. Will have a garden with pretty flowers and water them in time. As for my children, I will feed them with good, fresh food, bathe them, dress them prettily and take them out in the air every day. I will not whip them, but will teach them in a gentle way to be good.

DOROTHY WEINSTEIN, 10 years.
No. 28 Cannon street, Newport, R. I.

VERY GENEROUS

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

Thank you for giving the girls a chance to get a doll's house. I would keep it just as nice as I know how. I would treat the children as any good mother does her child. I would sew for them, take them for a nice walk, and my sisters would help me care for it. Our baby Frances is like the doll baby in the Happy Family. If I receive the house I will give her that doll.

ADELAIDE M'MURRAY, 10 years.
No. 102 Davis avenue, Brookline.

VERY STRICT RULES

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

If I were to keep house I would have a certain kind of work to do every day. I would have a place for everything and everything in order. I would run no bills; pay cash for everything, put a little money away each week, if only twenty-five cents. I would teach my children to be neat and to take care of their toys. I would teach them to do some kind of work every day, and to never lie or steal. I would have strict rules about their bedtime and meals.

LOUISE JEWETT, 10 years.
No. 51 Loraine street, Roslindale.

A BUSY MOTHER

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

On rising in the morning I would say my prayers, make my toilet, turn down the bedclothes to air, open the windows, make a nice plain breakfast, wash and dress the children and teach them to say their prayers. I would take my baby out in her carriage to the store, give the children plenty of fresh air, watch them at play and encourage them to study. Monday I would wash, Tuesday iron, Wednesday cook, bake Thursday, darn stockings and patch clothing Friday, and sweep and dust the whole house. Saturday I would bathe the children and cook for Sunday. Sunday, attend church and teach the children obedient manners at all times.

LILLIAN H. FOWLER, 10 years.
No. 150 Highland street, New Bedford.

BE VERY PATIENT

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

When I have a house of my own I will keep it nice and clean. I will sweep and dust it every day. If possible I will go to market myself. I will bathe my babies every morning, dress them with clean clothes, and will be very patient and good to them, and try to make them happy and healthy.

NINA RICHARDS, 13 years.
No. 3 Copeland street, West Quincy.

A GOOD BARGAIN

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I'd keep house this way: Clean and dust my attic rooms, keep my cellar nice and clean, then I would go into my other rooms and wash all paints and windows, sweep, dust and clean neatly. Then go to market and select nice meat and vegetables by trying to make a good bargain, and when home, cook it nicely; I'd tend to my dear babies by keeping them as clean as possible, and try to keep them in good health. I would also be a good, wise, tender mother, try to make them good, happy children.

GERTRUDE CHARRON, 8 years.
No. 61 Whiting street, Lynn.

KIND AND TRUTHFUL.

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

If I were grown up and had a house of my own the first thing I would do would be to keep order, keep my house clean and tidy, and also my person. I would have certain days for doing any housework. Monday would be washing day, Tuesday ironing day, Wednesday sweeping up and dusting, Thursday sewing, Friday housecleaning, Saturday baking and marketing. I would do my best to select fresh vegetables, so as to keep my children in good health. I would also keep them clean and tidy and teach them to be kind and truthful.

ETHEL FLETCHER, 11 years.
No. 79A Sheridan Street, Jamaica Plain.

General Rules for Preserving Fruits

HERE are some plain directions how to sterilize fruit as well as the utensils used in putting it up.

To sterilize a substance is to destroy all life and sources of life in and about it.

Since air and water, as well as the foods, contain bacteria and yeasts and may contain mold spores, all utensils used in the process of preserving foods are liable to be contaminated with these organisms.

For this reason all appliances as well as the food must be sterilized.

Stewpans, spoons, strainers, etc., may be put on the fire in cold or boiling water and boiled for ten or fifteen minutes.

Tumblers, bottles, glass jars and covers should be put into cold water and gradually heated to the boiling point, then boiled for ten or fifteen minutes.

The jars must be taken one at a time from the boiling water at the moment they are to be filled with the boiling fruit. The work should be done in a clean, well-swept and well-dusted room, and the clothing of the workers and the towels used should be clean.

The fruit to be sterilized should be perfectly sound and clean.

Heat Gradually

In canning fruits it is well to remember that the product is more satisfactory if heated gradually to the boiling point and then cooked the given time.

In preserving, canning and jellymaking, iron or tin utensils should never be used. The fruit acids attack these metals and so give a bad color and metallic taste to the products.

The preserving kettles should be porcelain lined, enamelled or of a metal that will not form chemical combinations with fruit juices. The kettles should be broad rather than deep, as the fruit should not be cooked in deep layers. Nearly all the necessary utensils may be found in some ware not subject to chemical action. A list of the most essential articles follows:

Two preserving kettles, one colander, one fine strainer, one skimmer, one ladle, one large-mouthed funnel, one wire frying basket, one wire sieve, four large-mouthed wooden spoons, one wooden masher, a few large pans, knives for paring fruit (plated, if possible), flat-bottomed clothes boiler, wooden or willow rack to put in the bottom of the boiler, iron tripod or ring, squares of cheesecloth.

In addition it would be well to have a flannel straining bag, a frame on which to hang the bag, a syrup gauge and a glass cylinder, a fruit pricker and plenty of clean towels.

Regular Pans

The regular kitchen pans will serve [illegible] holding and washing the fruit. Mi[illegible] bowls and stone crocks can be used [illegible] holding the fruit juice and pared fruit. When the fruit is to be plunged into boiling water for a few minutes before paring the ordinary stewpans may be employed for this purpose.

Scales are a desirable article in every kitchen, as weighing is much more accurate than the ordinary measuring. But as a large percentage of housekeepers do not possess scales it has seemed wise to give all the rules in measure rather than weight.

A fruit pricker is easily made and saves time. Cut a piece half an inch deep from a broad cork, press through this a dozen or more coarse darning needles and tack the cork on a piece of board. Strike the fruit on the bed of needles and you have a dozen holes at once.

When the work is finished remove the cork from the board, wash clean, dry thoroughly and put on a little oil to keep the needles from rusting.

While the syrup gauge and glass cylinder are not absolutely essential to preserving, canning and jellymaking, they are valuable aids in getting the right proportion of sugar for fruit or jelly. A lipped cylinder that holds a little over a gill is the best size.

HANDY HINTS FOR THE HOME

TO brighten nickel rub with a woollen cloth dipped in spirits of ammonia and afterward polish with a clean chamois leather.

The leaves of india rubber plants should be sponged with milk and water once a week. This treatment makes them bright and glossy.

When putting away silver a little olive oil rubbed over it will prevent it from getting tarnished. When needed wash in warm, soapy water and dry thoroughly.

When hanging clothes to dry, remember always to hang stockings by the toes, night dresses by the shoulders and skirts by the hem, and so prevent them dragging out of shape.

When staining a floor be careful always to brush with the grain of the wood, and not against it. Permanganate of potash dissolved in boiling water makes the cheapest stain one can get. The floor should be afterward polished with beeswax and turpentine.

After washing cut glass, dry very thoroughly and brush over with powdered chalk. A quite soft brush should be used, and all the crevices carefully gone into. Continue brushing till every vestige of the chalk is removed and the glass looks bright and sparkling.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

CHAPTER LXXXV.—(Continued)

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

HAGGARD shrugged his shoulders with a laugh.

"I did not say so; but you may force me to think it, if you don't desist making yourself conspicuous in so public a place."

In spite of his ease of manner, a horrible fear was overtaking Haggard—the fear lest Grieve should, in spite of everything, defy him for Miss Langford. A quickening of the fear that had driven him all that day not to let Grieve out of his sight.

An Understanding

He knew Miss Langford very well, and had no illusions about her. She was a charming companion, and—in spite of her pretty, pensive, childlike face—as mercenary, selfish and unscrupulous a young woman as was to be found in all that circle of electric glare where the night-world of the pleasure-seeking revolves.

Grieve's bragging display of the money he had won at cards had been the bait, of course, that made artless Miss Camille so ready to accept his invitation; Haggard had noticed the swift, avaricious gleam in those big, baby-innocent eyes of hers, if Grieve had not.

Grieve would be at her mercy; he would begin by talking boastfully, letting fall hints and admissions that would set Miss Camille's sharp wits working; before the evening was over the fool would have blurted out everything, Haggard knew, and perhaps would have lost that packet he had about him with the proofs of a man's forgery.

Until he had secured that packet Haggard dared not leave him—certainly not alone with so keen-witted a person as charming Miss Camille.

Once that packet was safely in his possession, Grieve's hold over him would be minimized; with the contents of that packet destroyed he might even be able to defy Grieve; while, if Wynter were to come back, at least he could not then prove the forgery. As for his attack on Wynter, his partner's inexplicable silence during all this time afterward, his delay in formulating an accusation—all that would go to weaken his story, should Robert Wynter ever return to tell it.

It seemed to Haggard that, once that all important packet was in his possession, there would be little for him seriously to fear.

He suddenly bent forward and whispered something earnestly in Miss Langford's ear. That it was some appeal directed at one of the vulnerable points of that very worldly wise young woman might be taken for granted. She listened, then almost imperceptibly nodded her head to him, as if an understanding had been arrived at.

A Queer Qualm

"Come, that isn't playing fair, Haggard!" he cried. "Miss Camille and I have settled it all, and I know you're jealous."

He was laughing boisterously; the champagne, the lights, the music, the women's glances, had all gone into his head, but he stopped with startling abruptness in the midst of his laughter. The orchestra, which had been playing some gay air from a musical comedy, had suddenly slid away into the minor; into a sad, plaintive melody as full of tears as the last air had been of laughter.

"Why do they play that infernal thing?" exclaimed Grieve, with an odd shiver, the noisy, excited laugh of a moment ago dead on his lips. "What do they want to play the Dead March here for? No one wants to be reminded of death."

The two women looked at him in surprise; his manner was strangely vehement; all the foolish mirth had gone out of his face. Then Mrs. Braham laughed.

"That isn't the Dead March, Mr. Grieve. It's the air of a song—Lassen's 'Allerseelen.' All Souls' Day, you know. Don't you think it sweetly pretty?"

"No, I hate it. It's so suggestive of death, and it sent an uncanny feeling over me for a moment just like——" He paused abruptly; he had not intended to say so much.

"What were you going to say, Mr. Grieve?" asked Miss Langford, her curiosity piqued. "Like what?"

He laughed awkwardly. "It's not worth mentioning," he said.

"Oh, do tell us."

"Well, if I must. But I know you'll laugh at me. This morning as I left the office the inexplicable feeling suddenly came to me that I was leaving it for the last time; then that air, for all the world like a Dead March, brought it back to my mind—gave me that eerie sensation that they say comes when someone is walking over one's grave. It was almost like a shadow of something coming—coming near—not that I believe in such nonsense," he said hastily. "Now laugh at me."

"Oh, I shouldn't laugh at you, Mr. Grieve," protested Miss Langford, in her pretty childish way. "I am so superstitious myself. Don't think me very foolish when I say that I believe firmly in omens and all sorts of things like that!"

She turned to her companions and added sotto voce while Grieve watched the pensive smile about the wistful rosebud mouth:

"I am sure he must be drunk, Rosalie, don't you think so? I believe he was really quite scared. I'm not going with him; he'd be wickedly dull company."

Grieve's wild hilarity was gone. In some absurd way that air, with its suggestion of death, had got on his nerves, had set his mind running on that old fancy that had obsessed him earlier in the day. He could not shake off the vague shadow that seemed to have fallen over him—was it the shadow "of something coming?" He felt he wanted to rush away out of hearing of that sad wailing melody; he did not want to be reminded of death when he was just beginning to live.

"Well, then, it is settled you ladies will accompany me?"

A Mere Child

"Oh, I am so sorry, Mr. Grieve," said Camille, "but I have just remembered that I have an engagement; it was so stupid of me to forget. And I should have liked to come so much!"

Haggard smiled within himself.

"I believe you put up Miss Langford to declining," Grieve said resentfully to Haggard as the two men left the room. "She was ready enough to come at first. Why did you interfere? Why shouldn't she have come?"

"You were a capital clerk, Grieve," said Haggard, dryly; "but you are at present a mere child where such women as Camille Langford are concerned. I hate to speak ill of a woman behind her back, and a woman I like—but she possesses the art of making a fool of inexperienced men with money in a degree I have never known equalled. I—have I explained sufficiently?"

"You are very solicitous about my welfare," said Grieve, sullenly.

A Brutal Trick

The red glare of the westering sun lit up Herald square; as the two men walked across it flashed fire on the windows on the eastern side of Broadway—the rather tinsel splendor of a sunset that accentuated the dust of city streets and the smoke-grimed buildings, and left one with the unsatisfied sense of something lacking; the song of birds, the rustling whispers of green leaves, the smell of the good brown earth.

They walked toward the Arabesque Theatre of Varieties.

Outside the big music hall Haggard's eyes caught an announcement of the new series of animated pictures, the embarking of the passengers of the ill-fated steamer by which Wynter had sailed—which Haggard was filled with a morbid, feverish desire to see.

He turned to his companion to speak of the cinematograph pictures, but Grieve's attention was occupied.

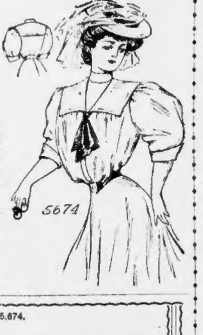
Hearst's Boston American Pattern

The New "Johnny Jones" Waist



No. 5,674—The question of suitable outing apparel is a subject of never failing interest to the feminine world. Numerous designs have been brought out this season, but a new one has appeared that promises to outstrip them all in popularity. It is known as the "Johnny Jones" waist, and combines comfort with smartness and good style. The model is built upon extremely good lines, the tucks in the upper part of the front giving a becoming fulness so desirable in a waist of this kind. A broad sailor collar outlines the neck and the up-to-date elbow sleeves are finished by turned-back cuffs. The design is suitable for flannel, mohair, pongee, linen and all the heavier washable materials. For 36-inch bust measure, 2¾ yards of 36-inch material will be required.

No. 5,674—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents and the size, name and address to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

YESTERDAY'S SHOPPER IDENTIFIED PROMPTLY

Original of Snapshot Called Yesterday Afternoon and Claimed the Reward.

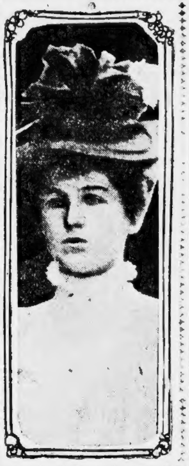
It didn't take long to identify the snapshot of a woman in yesterday's BOSTON AMERICAN. The original of the photo called late yesterday afternoon and received the award of $2 which is offered daily.

The lucky shopper was Miss May A. McCall, of No. 12 Adams street, Roxbury. She saw her photo in an early edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN about noon, and the likeness fairly took her breath away, she says.

"You tell the camera man he can take my photo every day," she declared. "I consider myself lucky, indeed."

The photo was a genuine surprise to Miss McCall. She didn't see the photographer when he snapped her opposite L. Starr's, on Winter street Monday noon.

Moral—Watch out for the camera man. You can't tell what day he'll get you. When he does call at the BOSTON AMERICAN office and get your money.



The original of this snapshot will receive a prize of $2.

NEWS OF LABOR.

There will be a special meeting to-night of the executive board of the Wage Earners' Central Club of Boston at Electrical Workers' Union headquarters, Wells Memorial Building. Representatives in all the twenty-five wards of the city are urgently requested to attend.

The club will have its regular meeting Friday night in Wells Memorial Hall. Thomas F. Tracy, who has been appointed by the American Federation of Labor as its campaign manager, will speak as the special representative of that body.

INDORSE PRINTERS' LABEL.

The label of the Allied Printing Trades Council was indorsed by Bookbinders' Union No. 16 at last night's meeting. Seven candidates were initiated. Arrangements were begun for a mass meeting of bookbinders to be held at Norwood some time next month. Among the speakers will be Organizer McGirr of the New England Allied Printing Trades Council.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS.

Electrical Workers' Union No. 104 has appointed the following committee on arrangements for the Labor Day parade: M. A. Murphy, Daniel McDonald, M. J. Birmingham, John McKenzie, John A. McDonald and Alexander Campbell.

M. A. Murphy was chosen to represent the union at the banquet to Frank K. Foster, and also to attend the meeting of the Massachusetts State Branch, A. F. of L., next Tuesday at Wells Memorial Building, to take political action.

LABOR NOTES.

Boston Harness Makers' Union received a report at last night's meeting from San Francisco stating that business is picking up there, and the members of that local are gradually returning to work.

President C. W. Cameron, Vice President Thomas Flaherty, Secretary C. J. Gallagher, Treasurer D. H. Deegan and C. P. Sullivan will represent Carpenters' Union No. 33 at the complimentary dinner to be given Frank K. Foster.

Bricklayers' Union No. 3 expects to have 800 men in the Labor Day Parade, notwithstanding the fact that a large number of members will be working out of town.

A testimonial to Secretary James E. White of Brass Workers' Union No. 55 will be given Friday night of next week by the metal work trades in Machinists' Hall, No. 994 Washington street.

President M. C. Roche will represent Horseshoers' Union No. 5 at the banquet to Frank K. Foster.

$5 DOWN, $1 PER WEEK.

The lot of pianos must and will be sold at the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms to settle up unpaid accounts; nearly every standard make on hand; Ivers & Pond, Hallet & Davis, Chickering and Merrill, are in mahogany and walnut cases, 3 pedals and in first-class condition; two pianos to one, reasons why, expenses in Roxbury hardly noticed; expenses in Boston, $200 to $500 daily; nearly every make to select from; good uprights $40, $50, $60, $65 and $75; square $10, $15 and $20, why pay more? Several new pianos, the stock of a first-class piano maker gone out of business, which will be sold at a sacrifice; don't fail to call and secure one; greatest chance ever offered; the canvasser agent and music teacher will tell you to keep away from us, reason why, we don't pay commissions; you get the benefit by our low prices; see for yourself, examine our nice stock.

The gilded piano stores with their costly fittings, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Why pay $200 more for a piano because it is on a polished floor? See us, nearly every make in stock, at the lowest possible prices and on very easy terms; 10 years' guarantee, stool and scarf with every piano; free delivery everywhere in unmarked wagons; goods guaranteed as represented or money refunded; entrance will be where you see the red flag; sale positive all the week; open Sat. eve. till 9 P. M. ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS, 723 Shawmut av., Roxbury; any Washington st. car to cor. Williams st.

The Passing of the Party Bosses

The Trusts' Appeal Directly to the Public Through the Newspapers Is a Sign of a New Era

One of the signs of the times in Boston is the eagerness to rush into print shown by those local trusts which live on special privileges obtained from the people.

The Gas Trust, the Electric Light Trust, the Telephone Trust and the Traction Trust (alias the Boston Elevated Railway) have been spending large sums of money buying advertising space in newspapers.

This shows that the trusts are learning. They know they can reach the public through the newspapers. They have found that THE PUBLIC MUST BE REACHED.

They can no longer depend upon their ownership of the old party bosses, who in the past have seen to it that no action which was not approved by the corporations was taken by State or city officials.

The Lighting Trust, which plays the organ while a mayor climbs up and down the porch like a monkey on a string, must prepare for the time when the voters will not tolerate such tame simians in office.

The Elevated Railway—owned by the same group of public plunderers that owns the Lighting Trust, and represented by a man who looks upon the Democratic party in Massachusetts as his personal asset—has discovered that it can no longer rely solely upon its relationship with corrupt politicians.

It must win the confidence of at least a portion of the public before it can be sure of obtaining any MORE valuable privileges, such as the Cambridge subway franchise, which was slipped through the recent oily Legislature.

The attempt of the public service corporations to reach the public through the newspapers is a good sign.

So long as they confine their efforts to the advertising columns no harm can come. When they induce certain easily influenced papers to print their "copy" as editorial or news matter, they are engaged in a kind of corruption fully as dangerous to American institutions as the bribery of legislators, or the "financing" of old-line party bosses.

Food the Root of Evil

Why Not Institute a Diet Punishment Instead of Jail Sentences for Criminals?

Crime used to be attributed to a depravity of the heart, but nowadays strange, specific causes are sought.

One savant informs the people that men drink to excess because their vision is not normal.

Another announces that murderers are forced to their bloody deeds through a malformation of the skull.

And now the superintendent of Chicago's Parental School declares truancy to be the outcome of improper food.

This particular illustration is hardly the happiest, for the fat and well-fed lad is as likely to play hookey as is the thin and hungry, but in other ways food may have some influence upon morals.

One would not expect a diet of beef stew and prunes to produce a bank burglar, and a vegetarian strong-arm man would be a curiosity.

A man whose tipple is buttermilk would seem out of character as a wife-beater, so the Chicago observer's theory may have merit.

To sentence a man to coffee and doughnuts for six months in the reformatory might cure the most desperate highwayman, and such a sentence would have the terrifying effect necessary to make criminals pause.

A year at hard breakfast food should quell the wildest desperado, and murder might be checked with the aid of life sentences and potted ham.

Little Editorials from the People

WHO CAN ANSWER THIS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Will some one kindly answer this important question, "Why does a government hire money when it has sole power to create it?"

"W. H. L."

AN INTERESTING INQUIRY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Senator Dana, recently appointed to the bench of the Superior Court, has qualified by taking the oath of office and then departing for Europe. His appointment came at a time when the Superior Court, except for criminal business, was shut down for vacation. The recess runs into October, about which time Judge Dana, presumably, will return for active service. Would it not be interesting to find out, as a piece of news, whether or not his salary begins from the time of his qualification, without service, or whether it will start when he takes his place on the bench for active service?

A BOSTON LAWYER.

WANTS MORE ATTENTION PAID TO BEETLES AND MOTHS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The alarming spread of the various caterpillar and beetle pests which are gradually destroying the trees of Boston this Summer does not seem to be taken seriously enough by the public authorities. Certainly scant attention is given the complaints of private citizens, and however much money is being spent, very little of it, so far as I can learn, is used in remedying conditions on the residence streets, where the premises of property owners are specially threatened.

Four times during one fortnight I reported to various persons, supposedly responsible for such things, that the city's trees in the street where I live were being stripped rapidly of their leaves, and that the caterpillars were spreading to my place. Having failed to get any satisfaction from "lower down," I appealed to the office of Superintendent Doogue. A day or two afterwards the moth brigade passed up Warren street, right by the end of Whiting street, and never even looked in my direction.

Owing to the apparent lack of virtue in the materials employed, the work of spraying is proving ineffectual. I am informed that the solution Superintendent Doogue's men use is in no way harmful to the caterpillars and beetles unless they eat it. This most of them seem wise enough not to do, evidently finding plenty of wholesome fodder in those portions of the trees which escape the attention of the destroyers.

I tried this solution on my own premises, under the impression that, being recommended by the city's experts, it must be effectual. I found, however, that it is not worth the trouble of mixing for all the good it did.

Whatever the matter is, it seems to me high time that someone with scientific knowledge of what ought to be done, and with a conscientious inclination to do what is expected of him, should take hold of this problem. As a taxpayer with a wholesome local pride, I for one am thoroughly disgusted with the present state of affairs. And there are others—plenty of them.

SAYS MEXICO IS FRIENDLY

[illegible]or BOSTON AMERICAN:

Having just returned from an extended sojourn in Mexico, I have had my attention called to recent press dispatches, apparently emanating from New Orleans, which appear to have been given wide circulation, which have caused me the greatest surprise, and which would seem to indicate that there exists a general and growing antipathy among the Mexicans, especially of the lower classes, toward the Americans.

This idea is diametrically opposed to my experience in that country, which extends over a period of some fourteen years, during which I have gained the most intimate knowledge of Mexico and her people through coming in close business relations, throughout the length and breadth of the country, with all classes, including Federal, State and municipal officials, bankers, merchants and property owners, and as an employer of the peon or laboring classes, and I wish to state most emphatically that I have yet to experience the slightest evidence of disposition on the part of any of these classes which would prove inimical to the Americans who are engaged in legitimate business there or to their interests.

On the contrary, I have uniformly found among all classes a disposition to encourage and assist in every reasonable and fair way that class of Americans who go to Mexico with honorable intentions.

I cannot too strongly state my earnest conviction that a great injury would be done to the reputation of the Mexican people if such impressions were received by any considerable number of people in this country as facts.

A. B. ADAMS.

APPROVES OF OLD-FASHIONED SPANKINGS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I beg to differ with an article which appeared sometime ago relative to punishing children, which stated that it injures a child's health to punish at bedtime. Now I have had a large experience rearing children, and my experience teaches that bed time punishment is less injurious (to health) and more effective than any other time.

Possibly the writer of the article inferred that the punishment should be postponed until morning, and let the child fret all night. If so, that would be injurious to health.

Now, I say a child should be punished immediately after committing the offence, if possible, but many times this is impossible, especially with mothers who, like myself, pin their faith to the old-fashioned, over-the-knee spankings. If it be late at night many mothers will say, "Well, I won't wake the neighborhood by spanking you to-night, but I'll spank you in the morning," and the poor child frets all night and may be sick ere morning. I know, for I have fretted myself all night dreading the spanking I was sure to get on the morrow.

Now, I say better let the child alone than have it fretting. Were I living in the heart of the city I would rather spank at any hour than have the child fret till morning.

MRS. P. A. MULVANEY.

Jamaica Plain. Mother of 13.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I hope your paper will preach the reciprocity act between cities. The refusal of Malden Park Commissioners to admit poor nature starved Boston children to the Fells, when under the supervision of their teachers, ought to stir up a cyclone of protest from public spirited people. If the suburban towns and cities of this metropolis follow Malden's lead and, Boston, as a matter of retaliation, closes her parks and public buildings to suburbanites, half the joys of life—the artistic and scientific and spiritual half—will be wantonly denied a people, who find life none too joyful at best.

This is so serious a matter that I think the Mayor of Boston should send a personal protest to the Mayor of Malden. What are our Mayors for, if not to further the interests of the people.

A Hot Weather Novel

I.

ELLEN gave him a chilling glance.

"I get the frosty phiz and the cold shoulder," sighed Jack Buster.

With a frigid "Good evening," Ellen coolly left the room.

Outside the mercury was trying to remember what zero looked like.

"That has cast a wet blanket over my hopes of a career," said Jack. "My prospects are frostbitten, and me for the simpler life."

II.

A HUGE ice-floe was drifting over the wintry sea. In a little hut of snow sat Jack Buggins, munching ice.

"A cold world," he murmured, the words falling frozen from his lips to the floor. "There is a coolness between me and the old life," he added, gazing across the vast ice-fields.

Taking off his pajamas, Jack dived into the freezing water.

"But at last," he said, "I have one advantage over the ordinary American—I can take things coolly."

PUBLICITY

SAYS old John D., "I think," says he,
"Publicity is right;
It's fair and just, and the wealthy must
Keep nothing out of sight.
So, come, my lads, and learn my fads;
No question will I foil,
Unless, perhaps, some prying chaps
Should ask of Standard Oil.

"I'LL reel right off my scores at goff,
And tell you of my wig;
At length I'll treat of what to eat
And why I never swig;
I'll give advice without a price
To every son of toil;
I'll nothing hide—that is, beside
Affairs of Standard Oil.

"I'LL bare my life to every knife,
And keep no secret hid,
Nor shrink nor quail, but tell the tale
Of everything I did.
Publicity," says old John D.,
"Most crooked games will spoil;
So every day I'll spout away—
But not of Standard Oil."
